It was an historic day at St. Anne's Roman Catholic Church last Sunday when 700 persons gathered to attend the installation of the Knights of St. Peter Claver. The Knights of St. Peter Claver were organized in Montgomery, Alabama in 1909. The organization has more than 20,000 members spread out over 16 states. The Knights have traditionally provided moral leadership to the millions of Black Catholic worshippers. Father Jay Matthew conducted the installation ceremony. Pictured are, Mary L. EVERS HITS LIBERALS

His name is Charles Evers. He is a Black man. And he is the mayor of Fayette, Mississippi.

Evers, the brother of slain civil right leader Medgar Evers, spoke at Sacramento City College Wednesday evening.

His message was not that of the traditional white of Black politician.

"Sometimes," he said, "we must rock the boat -- we may even have to turn it over -- to make sure that those whom we serve can get a chance."

He warned the whites in the audience that they cannot afford to be apathetic.

"You are no better off than we are," he told them, "the same corruption that is killing Black people will destroy you.

"This is no time for division," he said to all minority people. "Believe me, they (powerful whites) don't think you are anything either."

Evers a soft-spoken man who uses the vernacular of the South without the verbal accent, expressed some contempt for so-called "liberal California."

While driving here, he said during dinner at the Zombie Hut, "I looked for a good restaurant and found they were all owned by whites. The hotel I'm staying at is owned by whites; I went to grocery store and white folks waited on me and at all the gas pumps were manned by white folks.

"The kind of freedom Black people have in California is dangerous," he said.

"The white folks keep you so satis-

CLAY

CLEAVER

F.B.I. Checks Clay On Staff Use

ST. LOUIS - Federal agents have begun an investigation into reports that Rep. William L. Clay (D-Mo.), defrauded the government by using his staff for political purposes, it was announced.

Wesley T. Whaley, special agent in charge of the St. Louis FBI office, said the investigation is being conducted in St. Louis, Washington and other parts of the country.

"We're just as interested in proving his innocence as his guilt," Whaley said.

Clay, a north side St. Louis political power who is Missouri's first Black Congressman, said he welcomed the inquiry.

The investigation stems from newspaper reports that Clay used part of his $192,000 allowance for staff members to pay influential Democrats and their relatives in St. Louis.

Whaley said Los Angeles agents probably would be talking with Loretta V. Sanderson, who had been listed as a member of Clay's Washington staff. She is said to be a teacher in California. Clay has insisted she worked in his office the last six summers and that he merely was reimbursing her for that work.

"I welcome the investigation because this is the only way we're going to get this straightened out," Clay said.

Cleaver Would Like To Return To U.S.

PARIS - Eldridge Cleaver, 39, now living in Paris, has touches of gray in his hair. According to Newsweek Magazine, the former Black Panther leader has mellowed and would like to return to the United States.

Cleaver told Newsweek he would come back to face trial in California if assured he would not go to jail until his trial ends.

Cleaver fled the country in 1968 while facing a jail term for parole violation and prosecution for assault in a Panther-police shootout in Oakland.

He has lived in exile in Cuba and Algiers and now lives in a working class section of Paris with his wife, and two children.

Cleaver reportedly has royalties in six figures from his book, "Soul On Ice," but the U.S. Government has refused to let the money leave the country.

Newsweek said Cleaver indicated that he would like to live in California as a srot of armchair philosopher of the left. His lawyer, Charles Garry, told Newsweek a return to the U.S. on Cleaver's terms "doesn't look good."

E. Brown Advocates Panther Shift

OAKLAND - Today the dominant public figure of the Black Panters is an attractive 32-year-old former school teacher, Elaine Brown.

She has the Black Panthers giving free breakfasts to children and free transportation to the elderly.

The Panthers have come a long way since they burst into promonence in 1967 by walking into the California legislative chamber carrying rifles.

Newton and Seale, founders of the party, galvanized a following by preaching politics "at the end of a gun." But in recent years, they have switched from bullets to ballots.

LEWIS

BROWN

The party's early history was an endless tale of police raids on Panther quarters culminating in shootouts. Several murders occurred which police blamed on intraparty strife.

In 1971, the party publicly split in a dispute between Newton and Cleaver, author of "Soul On Ice." Cleaver advocated revolution by violence.

Last August, Newton and Seale both vanished, leaving a power vacuum. Newton, 33, faced with three new charges of assault with intent to commit murder, jumped a $42,000 bail and has not been seen since.

Neither has Seale. The Panthers say he is in Southern California recuperating from an illness and deny the two men had a personality clash in which Seale, 38, was physically beaten.

Mrs. Brown, currently running for a seat on the Oakland City Council, campaigns with the air of a gracious suburban housewife, and has endorsements from several Democratic clubs and AFL-CIO groups.

In Oakland, minorities hold a slight majority, and Mrs. Brown has attracted broad support by concentrating on concerns with jobs, education, housing and minority representation.

Oakland is seen by the Panthers as a model situation in which they can gain political power within the system, and members from other states are being trained in how to do it.

The suit stemmed from the Muhammad Ali-Quarry fight that Johnson successfully promoted on October 26, 1970.

Father Jay Matthews, revived History of Knights of St. Peter Claver.

Black Catholics Organize In City

by REV. VINCENT L. THOMPSON

It was an historic day at St. Anne's Roman Catholic Church last Sunday. St. Anne's was filled with "love, hope and the light of Jesus Christ" as approximately 700 persons witnessed the installation of the Knights of St. Peter Claver into the Sacramento area.

Father Jay Matthew summarized the history of this great organization. He recalled that the Knights of St. Peter Claver, were organized in 1909 in Montgomery, Alabama. It has a great history and tradition of giving moral leadership.

The organization has a membership of 20,000 members in 16 states.

The Western States District Deputy for the Ladies Division of the Knights of St. Peter Claver, is Mary L. Jackson.

Top Stars Invade City

Sacramentans who attended Bobby Bland's appearance at Mr. Ds nightclub Wednesday night received a triple treat for the price of one.

Singer Nancy Wilson and Charles Evers, mayor of Fayette, Miss., arrived at the nightclub totally unexpected.

And, since Blands and Miss Wilson are longtime friends, the two thrilled the audience with a little impromptu singing.

It was a most rewarding experience for persons who were able to talk, see and touch Miss Wilson. Just as beautiful as ever, the regal songstress accommodated each person who asked for an autographed, and shook hands with those who just wanted to get close.

While watching Blands, Miss Wilson demonstrated a beautiful respect for Blands' music and song. She clapped like an excited child and her reactions to Blands blues were the same oohs and aahs as the audience.

Bland is still a great performer. He gave the audience the same smooth and melancholious sounds that haunt and help lovers through difficult times. "I Pity the Fool," "Cry Cry, Cry" and others.

The only mote on the entire appearance at Mr. Ds of Nancy Wilson, who performed earlier that evening at the Earl Warren Community Center, was the fact that someone seemed to have forgotten protocol.

Though it would be almost impossible for any of the Black nightclubs in Sacramento to afford Nancy Wilson to perform, none remembered to thank her for her performance--except Bobby Blands--and there was no offer of a bottle of champagne or wine so that she would remember Sacramento. In fact, someone at Miss Wilson's table paid for the first round of drinks.

The significance of this is simple. When people call Sacramento "a one horse town," they ain't just whistling Dickie.

BLAND

Added note: Nancy Wilson is expecting a child sometime in May. She is very proud of the fact and shared it with her adopted audience.

Charles Evers Hits Liberals...

fied, you don't have nothing.

"In the South," said Evers, "Black folks got to do their own thing. White folks won't let us on their television so we have our won stations. We have restaurants, stores and one of the finest motels in Mississippi is owned by Black folks--it is super.

"I would rather deal with a staunch rabid racist than a super liberal," Ever said.

"Super liberals have done more to fool us than a racist ever could. If you are an SOB with a racist today, you are one tomorrow. If your are a nigger to a racist today, you will be ont tomorrow.

"But the liberals, they come swarmming after us like we are something good to eat and give us nothing in return.

"Black people," said Evers, "must begin to do something for self and a staunch racist will make you do something you wouldn't ordinarily do -- like owning radio stations, restaurants, television stations and hotels."

Evers along with other Black politicians, recently was accused of taking money from white politicans for getting Black votes.

Asked about the charges, Evers said, "What do they expect us to do, work for nothing. If we work for politican -- or any person for that matter, you get paid like any other person.

"But the media would have Black people to believe that Black politicans are selling them out. This is not the case. We try to help organize behind the best person and when we spend our time and money -- we should be reciprocated like any other worker."

Evers maintains the charges stem from his refusal to back McGovern during the 1972 presidential election. "I chose to back Lindsey," he daid, "and when it was evident he could not run, I backed Shirley Chislohm."

Evers said he believes the attack was a way of trying to further divide Black politicians.

"They named everyone except Julian Bond. The reaction they expected was for us to say, 'well, Julian was the only one they didn't name so he must be on the man's list.' But that is not what happened at all. We recognized exactly what was happening and Julian always will have our support."

The division among Black people is partically due to the fact "we as a people have not yet realized that we are unique and individuals."

"Just because one person can write, does not mean that every Black person can. One Black doctor does not mean that every Black person is capable of becoming a doctor."

The problem, said Evers, is that Blacks must learn to respect each talents the same as any other people.

CHARLES EVERS

Respect and support was his advice.

"Black people shooting Black folks--why that is ridiculous," said the tall stout man.

"People respect those who respect themselves and our motto should be--'don't get mad, get smart," said Evers.

Evers, whose town has a population of about 2,000 but also controls the county population of 10,000, said there have been marked improvement since he became mayor.

"When you have power, you can make changes. White folks don't call Black folks names in my town. I fined a white man-- you see I'm also the judge --$1,000 for calling a Black man a nigger SOB."

Other changes, he said, include more jobs for Black people and through government programs.

During a question and answer session at SCC, Evers told the audience he will support George Wallace for president if Wallace continue to change.

"There is no person more dedicated than a converted racist. Wallace has done some tremendous things since he was shot in the gut."

One of those things, said Evers, was a $8 million grant to Tuskegee University from the state of Alabama.

Another, he said, was attending a conference of Black mayors.

"You can get more our of a converted racist than lifetime liberal," Evers informed his audience.

He said Alabama has 29 Black state highway patrolmen and asked how many California has.

Alabama, he said, got more than 20 state legislative positions for Black people.

Evers, who currently faces charges of income tax evasion, said he is not worried about being sent to jail. The other end of the stick, he said, is being charged with welfare fraud.

Dellums Suggests To Kissinger

Rep. Ronald V. Dellums has urged Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to reconsider any decision he might have to escalate U.S. involvement in Vietnam. In a letter to Dr. Kissinger, Dellums said there appears no possibility that peace can be achieved by financing continued war.

Rep. Dellums noted with great concern the State Department's policy is treat "as a dead letter an agreement which Congress and the American people had hoped would bring an end to a long, costly and tragic war." He asserted that increasing U.S. involvement, beginning with military aid, is the first step toward re-entering a war that "supposedly had been put behind us."

Dellums who came to Congress with strong opposition to the Vietnama War, commented that "more than a decade of U.S. involvement in Vietnam should have cured us of the desire to finance more destruction and deaths." He pointed out that last year Congress defeated the Administration's request for a supplemental appropriation for Vietnam and urged the Secretary of State to seriously consider any further involvement in Southeast Asia.

Ombudsman Legislation

Legislation creating an office of Ombudsman in California, was introduced by Assemblyman Julian C. Dixon (D-Los Angeles) this week.

"The business of State Government is people," Dixon said. "However, this philosophy of government is too often more honored in the breech than in the observance."

"There is no state agency which is specifically commissioned with the responsibility of investigating citizens complaints or investigating State agencies which are acting against the public interest," Dixon said. "The office of Ombudsman would correct this deficiency."

DIXON

Dixon's Legislation, AB 1158, would establish a State office of Ombudsman, appointed by the State Legislature for a 6-year term, and would authorize the Ombudsman office to investigate complaints by citizens and administrative acts by State agencies which the Ombudsman finds are unlawful, discriminatory, improper or inefficient.

The measure would vest the office of Ombudsman with the power of subpoena and establish procedure for reporting the Ombudsman opinions and recommendations to the Governor and State Legislature.

The Ombudsman, which loosely translated means office or commission of the people, was first established in Sweden in 1809, and was charged with investigating complaints filed against government agencies. Since this time, Ombudsman offices have been established in Finland, Denmark, Norway, New Zealand, while in the U.S., both Hawaii and Nebraska have Ombudsman.

Dixon added that judicial review of administrative procedures and decisions has been a safeguard but only occurs when a decision by an agency violates some well established rights of the individual.

"Government in California educates our children, builds our highways, licenses our cars, and provides a host of other services," Dixon said. "Usually these services are provided effectively and efficiently, however, often the individual and his rights are forgotten in the process of providing these services."

"An Ombudsman's office as envisioned by AB 1158, can be effective check against bad administration and capricious and arbitrary state agencies," Dixon concluded.

Rudy Lester Named To Correction Council

Rudy V. Lester, a resident of Davis, was recently appointed to serve on the California Department of Correction's Research Advisory Council.

Bill To Legalize Greyhound Racing In State

ASSEMBLY MEET

Observers and witnesses packed an Assembly hearing room this week as AB 455 legalizing Greyhound racing and breeding of the dogs for commerical usage received its first public inspection. The measure authored by Los Angeles lawmaker Leon Ralph, chairman of the Assembly Rule Committee, has generated strong opposition from humane society groups arguing that the animals would be brutalized if Greyhound racing was legalized in California. Witnesses said that Dogs not considered by their owners racing material would be destroyed needlessly without proper legislative protection.

While testifying before the Assembly Governmental Organization Committee, Assemblyman Leon Ralph (D-Los Angeles) revealed for the first time that he and his family are currently receiving police protection by state and federal officers because of his introduction of AB 455, an act related to dog-racing.

"Approximately six weeks ago and periodically thereafter, I have been receiving letters, threatening to do violence to my family and me. It is absolutely astounding to think that some of the opposition to this bill has not matured to the point, where they will not allow the democratic and legislative process to run its course. It is just incredible to think that someone would go so far as to threaten my life, the lives of my children, and the life of my wife," stated the Watts-South Gate Assemblyman.

"AB 455 is a measure which permits wagering on greyhound races in five Californis counties. To date, Greyhound racing in California is not permitted by law, as a result, California dollars are being spent in Nevada, Arizona, Oregon and Tijuana, Mexico. Dog-racing is a popular sport throughout the country and people want this form of entertainment, even if they have to spend their money and create jobs in other states," Assemblyman Ralph commented.

The Assemblyman and his family started receiving police protection early this morning, the first day of the legislative hearing.

When asked, wouldn't it be safer if he withdrew the measure, the Assemblyman responded, "I have no intentions of 'buckling under' to these threats -- malicious or otherwise. I refuse to believe we have returned to the days of 'prohibition' or the days of the 'wild, wild, west.' This measure deserves a public hearing, just like any other measure. If fairness and honesty means anything, I intend to pursue this matter with diligence and commitment."

Action was taken late Monday afternoon, by the Assembly Governmental Organization Committee to hold the measure for amendments. The bill will leave a second hearing April 8th.

Assemblyman Ralph Recieves Death Threats

Los Angeles Lawmaker Leon Ralph, chairman of the Assembly Rules Committee and author of a bill that would legalize Greyhound racing in California, has received several death threats over the last few weeks according to a staff assistant.

The first threat was received by Ralph, about six-weeks ago, with the most recent coming this week.

The most recent threat was received shortly before public hearing on Assembly Bill 455 were to begin.

The measure would legalize Greyhound racing and breeding of the dogs in California.

Chief Consultant Jim Ware, said this week that Ralph is being escorted by two plain clothes state police officers while on legislative business.

Unsubstantiated reports this week by persons who wished to remain anonymous, said that Ralph's family had been similarly threatened.

At least two of the letters received by Ralph's office, have been sent from Los Angeles.

RALPH

Ware said that both letters have been turned over to authorities for further investigation.

There are also unsubstantiated reports circulating the capitol, that Ralph is being protected by at least one FBI agent.

However, members of Ralph's staff refused comment on the rumor saying that it would not be appropriate at this time.

It is generally rumored, that death threats are being sent to Ralph by members of organized crime attempting to "get a cut of the action."

During hearing this week, it was learned that organized crime has infiltrated Greyhound racing in at least two states where it has been legalized.

FBI agent, Paul Young of the Sacramento Office, said "we do not have authorization to protect anyone, and he is not under surveillance."

However, he added, "we are investigating threats made against him," when asked if the FBI was involved with the case.

Young said that they are working with local authorities on the case, but the FBI's Special Strike Force on organized crime has not been called into the case to his knowledge.

'Law In The Schools' Course

The principal of a local junior high school, receives an anonymous phone call that there is a bag of amphetamine pills in a student's locker. Is he allowed to search the locker? If he calls the police, could they search the locker? Is there any danger that calling the police at this stage would make the job of law enforcement harder?

These questions, and hundreds more like them, are apt to arise at a moment's notice in any school. Nevertheless, many teachers do not feel knowledgeable enough to act with the decision which the situation may require.

University of California Davis Extension presents, as part of its winter quarter program, a special eight-week course familiarzing teachers, administrators, parents and others with the legal rights of students and teachers in a school situation.

"Law in the Schools," is a survey of constitutional principles and statutory provisions relating to regulation of student behavior and protection of students' rights in the public schools, with the emphasis on practical applications. The course is designed to help teachers and administrators cope with student misbehavior, while at the same time allowing a maximum of lawful expression, from sensitivity to constitutional freedoms.

Joel S. Moskowitz, deputy attorney general for the State of California Department of Justice, will teach the course.

Representative Coakley To Visit Sacramento

Congressman Robert Leggett this week, announced that the next visit of his District Representative, James Coakley, to the Sacramento area, will be March 26.

Coakley stated he will be holding office hours in the office of the American Federation of Government Employees, which is located at 5802 Watt Avenue, North Highlands, from 10:00 a.m., until 12 noon, for the purpose of meeting with constituents or representatives of public agencies who have problems of a federal nature.

Any constitutent or group wishing an appointment to see Mr. Coakley, may make an appointment by calling 332-3250 and 332-3278.

Life To Host Bowling Tournament

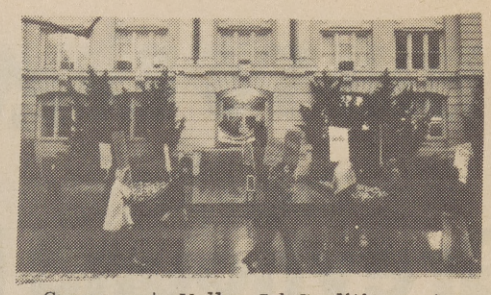
LIFE (Love in Friendship and Education), a Sacramento based organization devoted to the fight against sickle cell anemia, will sponsor a bowling tournament at South Bowl Lanes, 5005 Stockton Blvd., March 22, 23, 29 and 30 from noon until 2 p.m.

The event, which will include singles and double handicaps, will offer cash prizes and gifts.

Persons wishing to enter the tournament may contact Lou Williams, 7711 25th Street, Sacramento 95832, or call 422-3744.

Protesters victoriously filed out of City Council chambers following defeat of the proposal.

Concerned workers and their supporters waited the star of the City Council meeting.



Sacramento Valley Job Coalition protesters braved the rain to voice their position on the Gennis, Gray and Justice Report.

City Workers Defeat Proposed Cutbacks

Disgruntled city workers angered by a proposal to consolidate waste removal and street cleaning departments, successfully defeated the measure submitted by consultants Gennis, Gray and Justice.

The measure researched and presented to City Council, proposed to consolidate the two departments in an effort to cut down on operational costs.

Members of the Sacramento Valley Jobs Coalition, opposed the proposal and openly voiced their dissatisfaction for the plan by calling a press conference and picketing the Council's meeting.

The coalition argued that the consolidation proposal would cost jobs.

Likewise, there were others who disapproved of the plan for "racist" reasons.

The Street Cleaning Department is predominantly white in its employment composition, whereas Waste Removal is predominantly non-white.

Council members rejected the plan after strong protest by organized labor, senior citizens and workers of both departments.

According to the City Clerks offices, a motion was made to adopt a portion of the proposal. The motion failed and sealed the fate of the Gennis Gray and Justice Report.

The City of Sacramento will continue to have two separate and distinct departments of Waste Removal and Street Cleaning.

$12.4 Million For Blind, Aged

Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr., announced he has directed the emergency release of $12.4 million to assure continued in-home care for an estimated 60,000 aged, blind and disabled Californians.

The action was required to offset escalating costs and to keep the program operating through the end of the fiscal year this June 30.

Without the special aid, many of those in the Homemaker - Chore Services program, would be forced to leave their homes and enter hospitals or nursing homes, Brown said.

"I'm very concerned in this period of inflation that we assist those who are least able to help themselves, and to do it, in a compassionate and understanding manner," Brown said.

At the same time, Brown ordered imposition of new controls to make certain that social services funds are spent prudently.

"We face a fiscal crisis that is potentially unparalleled. We must have reasonable controls if we are to be certain these programs are accomplishing their goals within the limited funds available," he said.

The $12.4 million was released to the state's 58 counties under a directive by the governor to Robert Gnaizda, acting director of the state Department of Health.

The total includes an $8.4 million emergency allocation first announced by Brown in January.

In addition, Brown today ordered the reallocation of another $4 million in unspent social services funds to keep the homemaker care program operating through the end of the fiscal year.

County welfare directors were told that substantial administrative and fiscal belt-tightening will be needed to all social service programs. The state faces a possible $16. billion deficit in welfare and Medi-Cal spending in the coming fiscal year because of pending legislation, lawsuits and a series of "arbitrary and often senseless," federal cutbacks, the governor said.

The threatened $1.6 billion deficit does not include possible increases in welfare and Medi-Cal caseloads.

Brown ordered Gnaizda to take a compassionate and innovative look at all elements of the Medi-Cal and welfare programs.

The homemaker care program is relatively new and has not been subjected to systematic review or adequate control, Brown said.

The program originally was funded through July 1 with about $65 million, including $49 million in federal funds and $16 million from the state. But with three months still to go in the fiscal year, it is running more than $12 million over its budget.

Gnaizda advised the county welfare directors of the action by telegram. He said members of his staff would meet personally with county welfare representatives during the next two weeks to discuss recommendations "regarding the immediate implementation of tight and fiscally responsible controls on escalating expenditures in social service programs.

Black Educators Plan Confab

Beginning April 11th through April 13, the Commission of Local School Administrators of the National Alliance of Black School Educators will host the Spring Conference of the Western Region in the Capitol City.

The National Alliance of Black School Educators is a national organization with approximately four thousand members, currently representing 36 states.

The Alliance is structured into six Commissions:

The Commission of Local School Administrators; Commission of Superintendents; Commission of General School Administrators; Commission of High Education, and the Commission of Directors, and Commission of Supervisors.

The purpose of the organization is to make a strong commitment to the education of all children and to Black children in particular, and provide a coalition of Black Educators.

The Alliance also serves to create a form for the exchange of ideas and techniques; to identify and develop Black professionals who will assume leadership positions in the education of children.

The national and regional conference theme for this year is "Pulling the Educational System Together: A Black Perspective."

A reception honoring Dr. Eloise Anderson, National Chairperson of the Commission of Local School Administrators, and Dr. Charles W. Townsel, National President of the Alliance, will be held Thursday, April 10th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Hurdle.

"Your future starts tomorrow ...plan for it today!"

Instead of waiting for retirement age and then saying, "I wish I had . . . ", how about doing some practical planning right now, and later, being able to say, "I'm sure glad I did . . !"

There are many differing theories on ways to build toward financial security. However, there is one suggestion almost all financial advisors agree upon . . .

"Put some of your earnings aside . . . on a regular basis . . . in an insured, interest-paying, savings account . . . and leave it alone!"

An ideal place to put this advice into practice is Placer Savings . . . with "I.S.P." Placer consistently pays top interest. Depending on which of our six different savings plans you select, interest ranges from 5¼% to 7½%. With Placer's daily compounding, you actually earn from 5.39% all the way to 8.06%! . . . and every account is insured up to $40,000. To help you resist the temptation of nibbling away at your savings, you can't write checks against any of Placer's accounts and, with the exception of our regular passbook accounts, there's a substantial penalty if you withdraw money before the agreed to time. We call it "Impulsive Spending Protection" . . . "I.S.P."

Because each of us has different incomes, needs and goals, Placer now offers six different savings accounts and you can use them singly or in any combination. We call them "Individualized Savings Plans" . . . more "I.S.P."

Need more inducement? How's this:

If you're self-employed or working at a permanent job with no retirement plan, Placer can help you set up your own retirement plan, with the money you put in tax deductible until your retirement!

Group Seeks Military Cutbacks

An organization of a broad national campaign for a reduction in military spending and the shifting of funds to meet national priorities, will take place in Chicago at the La Salle Hotel on April 5 and 6, 1975, at a "National Conference for a Drastic Cutback In Military Spending."

The conference call states that the funds spent for "nuclear weapons will not give jobs to the unemployed or reduce soaring food prices."

The call further states that arms race increases the danger of war in Indochina, in the Middle East and the danger of world nuclear destruction. It is an obstacle to the development of detente and the movement for universal disarmament."

The committee of organizers state that "We need a 52 billion dollar cutback in military spending" which could provide "Millions of jobs at union wages for all unemployed men, women and young people who have never had jobs, mass housing at rents people can afford, integrated education for all children, public transportation at minimum fares, full medical care for all, revitalization of our decaying cities, reconversion from a war economy to a peace economy."

"President Ford's budget for 1976 shows a blatant neglect of the working people, of the poor, of the aged, of the youth and particularly of the Black and other minority people who are hardest hit by the crisis we face. The President stated that we are facing . . . higher unemployment which is now at a 34-year high . . . He proposed cutting 17 billion from socially-necessary programs, which means slashes in social security, medicare funds, food stamps, pension funds, school lunches, welfare, etc. But no cuts in the staggering military budget."

Based on responses to date, the Conference organizers anticipate large delegations from all sectors of the population affected by the present economic crisis and those concerned with our Administration's foreign policy. Many commitments have been received from auto, steel and government workers, from the religious and academic communities, from Blacks, Chicanos, Puerto Ricans, Asians and other oppressed minorities, from organizations of youth, women, and the elderly.

'Men & Women In Modern Society' Speech

"How to Say No to a Rapist and Survive," will be the topic of lecturer Frederic Storaska Tuesday, April 1, in the first of a spring symposium sponsored by the Student Association of American River College.

The symposium is titled "Men and Women in Modern Society."

Storaska, who will speak at noon on the south lawn of the college cafeteria, is the author of a recently - released book which shares his lecture title's name.

His approach is to destroy many of the myths surrounding the crime of rape, including that which casts women as helpless when faced with assault.

Storaska has lectured to more than a million students at 500 colleges.

Black Reaction Mixed At CSUS

Black faculty and staff reaction on the California State University, Sacramento (CSUS) campus was mixed this week as the school's 700 academic employees prepared to cast votes testing the confidence of president Dr. James Bond's administration.

Last week the Faculty Senate approved a referendum ballot, alledging that Bond's refusal to appropriate state funds for faculty promotions and his grievance polices were causes of serious disagreement.

Last Sunday, a meeting of the Black Faculty and Staff Association failed to adopt a formal position on the referendum issue. The meeting left some members disappointed.

"I am very disappointed that our organization did not take a stand," said Professor Stan Wright voicing his concern for a formal position.

"Dr. Addison Sommerville, chairman of the Black Faculty and Staff Association, said that he presented a motion to 30 members attending Sunday's meeting for a position on the referendum.

"As chairman, I brought it up to the membership . . . there were people who did not want to take a stand," said Dr. Sommerville, adding, "It is a tragedy because I would have liked to have seen them come out."

The Black Faculty and Staff Association, according to Sommerville, has approximately 140 members. However, he said that about 40 are actively involved.

Dr. Sommerville reported that within the Black Faculty and Staff Association, there are also members of the United Professors of California, the group spearheading the drive to censor Bond's administration.

Sommerville was joined in his observation by Dr. Fannie Canson, who likewise expressed concerns that the organization was being manipulated by UPC members.

According to Dr. David Covin, there is also overlapping membership among UPC members and the Faculty Senate.

When asked if there existed a coalition of groups opposed to Bond's administration, Covin said, "The people who are in one group, are also part of others. There is overlapping membership and they talk."

Poet-In-Residence, Eugene Redmond, shares joint membership in both the UPC and Black Faculty and Staff Association.

Redmond summarized the division of Black staff and faculty, saying that the situation is a "mess."

"It is a very emotional issue if you are a Black on this campus," said Redmond, adding, "Because you can't overlook that Dr. Bond is a Black man."

It appears that Black Faculty and staff, are torn between racial loyalty and professional objectivity on the controversy.

"I'm not for Bond because he's Black. I'm for Bond because he is a damn good man," said Wright strongly divorcing himself from the race issue.

Dr. Canson differed with Wright's position. "These groups are on a wild fervish manhunt, and of course, racism plays a part in it."

Dr. Covin, touched a moderate position saying that each Black person, "Brings a different preception of it (the referendum)."

Barbara Humphrey, a non-academic employee, has worked for the last five presidents and refused comment.

"I think I've been too close to the administration to really give an objective analysis," said Mrs. Humphrey adding, "I am in support of him, both as a man, and as a president."

Of those interviewed by THE OBSERVER, all agreed that they were in support of President Bond. However, when questioned concerning specific issues, the responses varied between disagreement and agreement.

"I think Bond is the first president, in my opinion, to take a definite stand," said Wright adding that in the time he has been at CSUS, various cliques have attempted to control the operation of the university.

"Right or wrong, he has had the courage to take a stand," stated Wright, noting that few of Bond's predecessors had the conviction to centralize the university's administration.

Dr. Jessie McClure, Dean of the School of Social Work, said that the number of presidents the university has had, over the last five years, is an indication of the deep turmoil of the institution.

"Look at the number of presidents we have had, the number of vice presidents and other kinds. And tell me that it says something," said Dr. McClure adding, "This thing that Bond is confronting, with the exception of Bond being Black, has happened to all the presidents."

Mae Callahan, a non-academic employee, said that the referendum has forced her to "really sort through (her) feelings."

Mrs. Callahan said that she has not reached a decision, because she was not in a position to weigh the issue objectively.

Margaret Williams, a part-time faculty employee, said that she felt there was solidarity within the Black campus community.

"If I had a vote, I would vote in favor of him," Ms. Williams said, adding that she felt that racism was part of Bond's problems.

The results of the referendum should be available next week.

Support For Bond Grows

A coaltion of educational, civil rights and fraternity organizations late this week announced their support for troubled California State University, Sacramento, and President Dr. James Bond.

The National Alliance of Black School Educators, the Sacramento Chapter of the NAACP, Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, the Sacramento Urban League, and Black Women for Political Action, went on record in support of Bond's efforts to stabalize the university campus.

"The Sacramento area and the State of California, can no longer tolerate this instability," said Dr. Charles Townsel, President of the National Alliance of Black School Educators and a spokesperson for the Urban League.

Dr. Townsel is also superintendent of the Del Paso Heights Elementary School -- reading from a prepared release-- lauded Bond's efforts to bring stability to the CSUS campus.

"Since arriving at the university, President Bond has worked to effect an organization to provide an apt context for the special functions of the University," stated Townsel.

The coaltion called for the faculty to "look critically at their responsibility to academic excellence with all its ramifications."

The coalition callef for moderation in resolving the issues that separate Bond from the faculty.

"Men of goodwill must dissect present facts with consumate clarity . . . One university is, we believe, what the overwhelming majority of the faculty and staff want."

The coalition said that in their opinion, "a certain segment of the faculty wants to govern the institution."

When asked if they were referring to the United Professors of California (UPC), the group spearheading the referendum testing Bond's confidence to administer the university, Dr. Townsel responded, "Yes, that is who I am talking about."

The coaltion also charged the UPC with attempting to make policy for the university. When asked to qualify the statement, Dr. Marcus Crowder representing Alpha Phi Alpha said that groups such as the UPC support collective bargaining and that they are attempting to get a "foothold in the political process."

Dr. Townsel said that through discussions with Addison Sommerville Chairman of the Black Faculty and Staff Association at CSUS, he believed that there is "unity" among Black campus employees.

Ironically in conversation with THE OBSERVER, Sommerville reported that Black Faculty and Staff Association members, failed last Sunday to adopt a motion in support of President Bond.

Townsel, when asked to explain the contradicition, responded:

"I don't know -- I am not part of that faculty, I was there as an observer."

However, Townsel reported that there were three "vocal" persons at that meeting, but that 27 supported Bond. According to some who attended that meeting, it was not clear who supported Bond and who did not.

The coaltion believes that racism does not have anything to do with the currently controversy facing Bond's administration.

"We believe that racism has nothing to do with it at CSUS," said Townsel.

The coaltion concluded by calling upon the community of Sacramento, "to demand both faculty and administration work together to continue an academic atmosphere necessary to the orderly functions at CSUS."

A coalition of Black Civil Rights groups and educators announced their support for California State University, Sacramento, and President Dr. James Bond. Bond is under fire this week by members of the United Professors of California, the CSUS Faculty Senate and the University's Alumni Association. The coalition asked that the Sacramento community voice their support for Bond's administration. Shown are from left, Loubertha Banks, a concerned educator; a person who refused to identify himself; Jim Williams of the NAACP; Alice Wright-Cottingin, Black Women Organized For Political Action; Dr. Charles Townsel, Urban League - Black Alliance of Black School Educators; Marcus Crowder, Alpha Phi Alpha and Stan White, Sacramento Black Business Advisory Council.

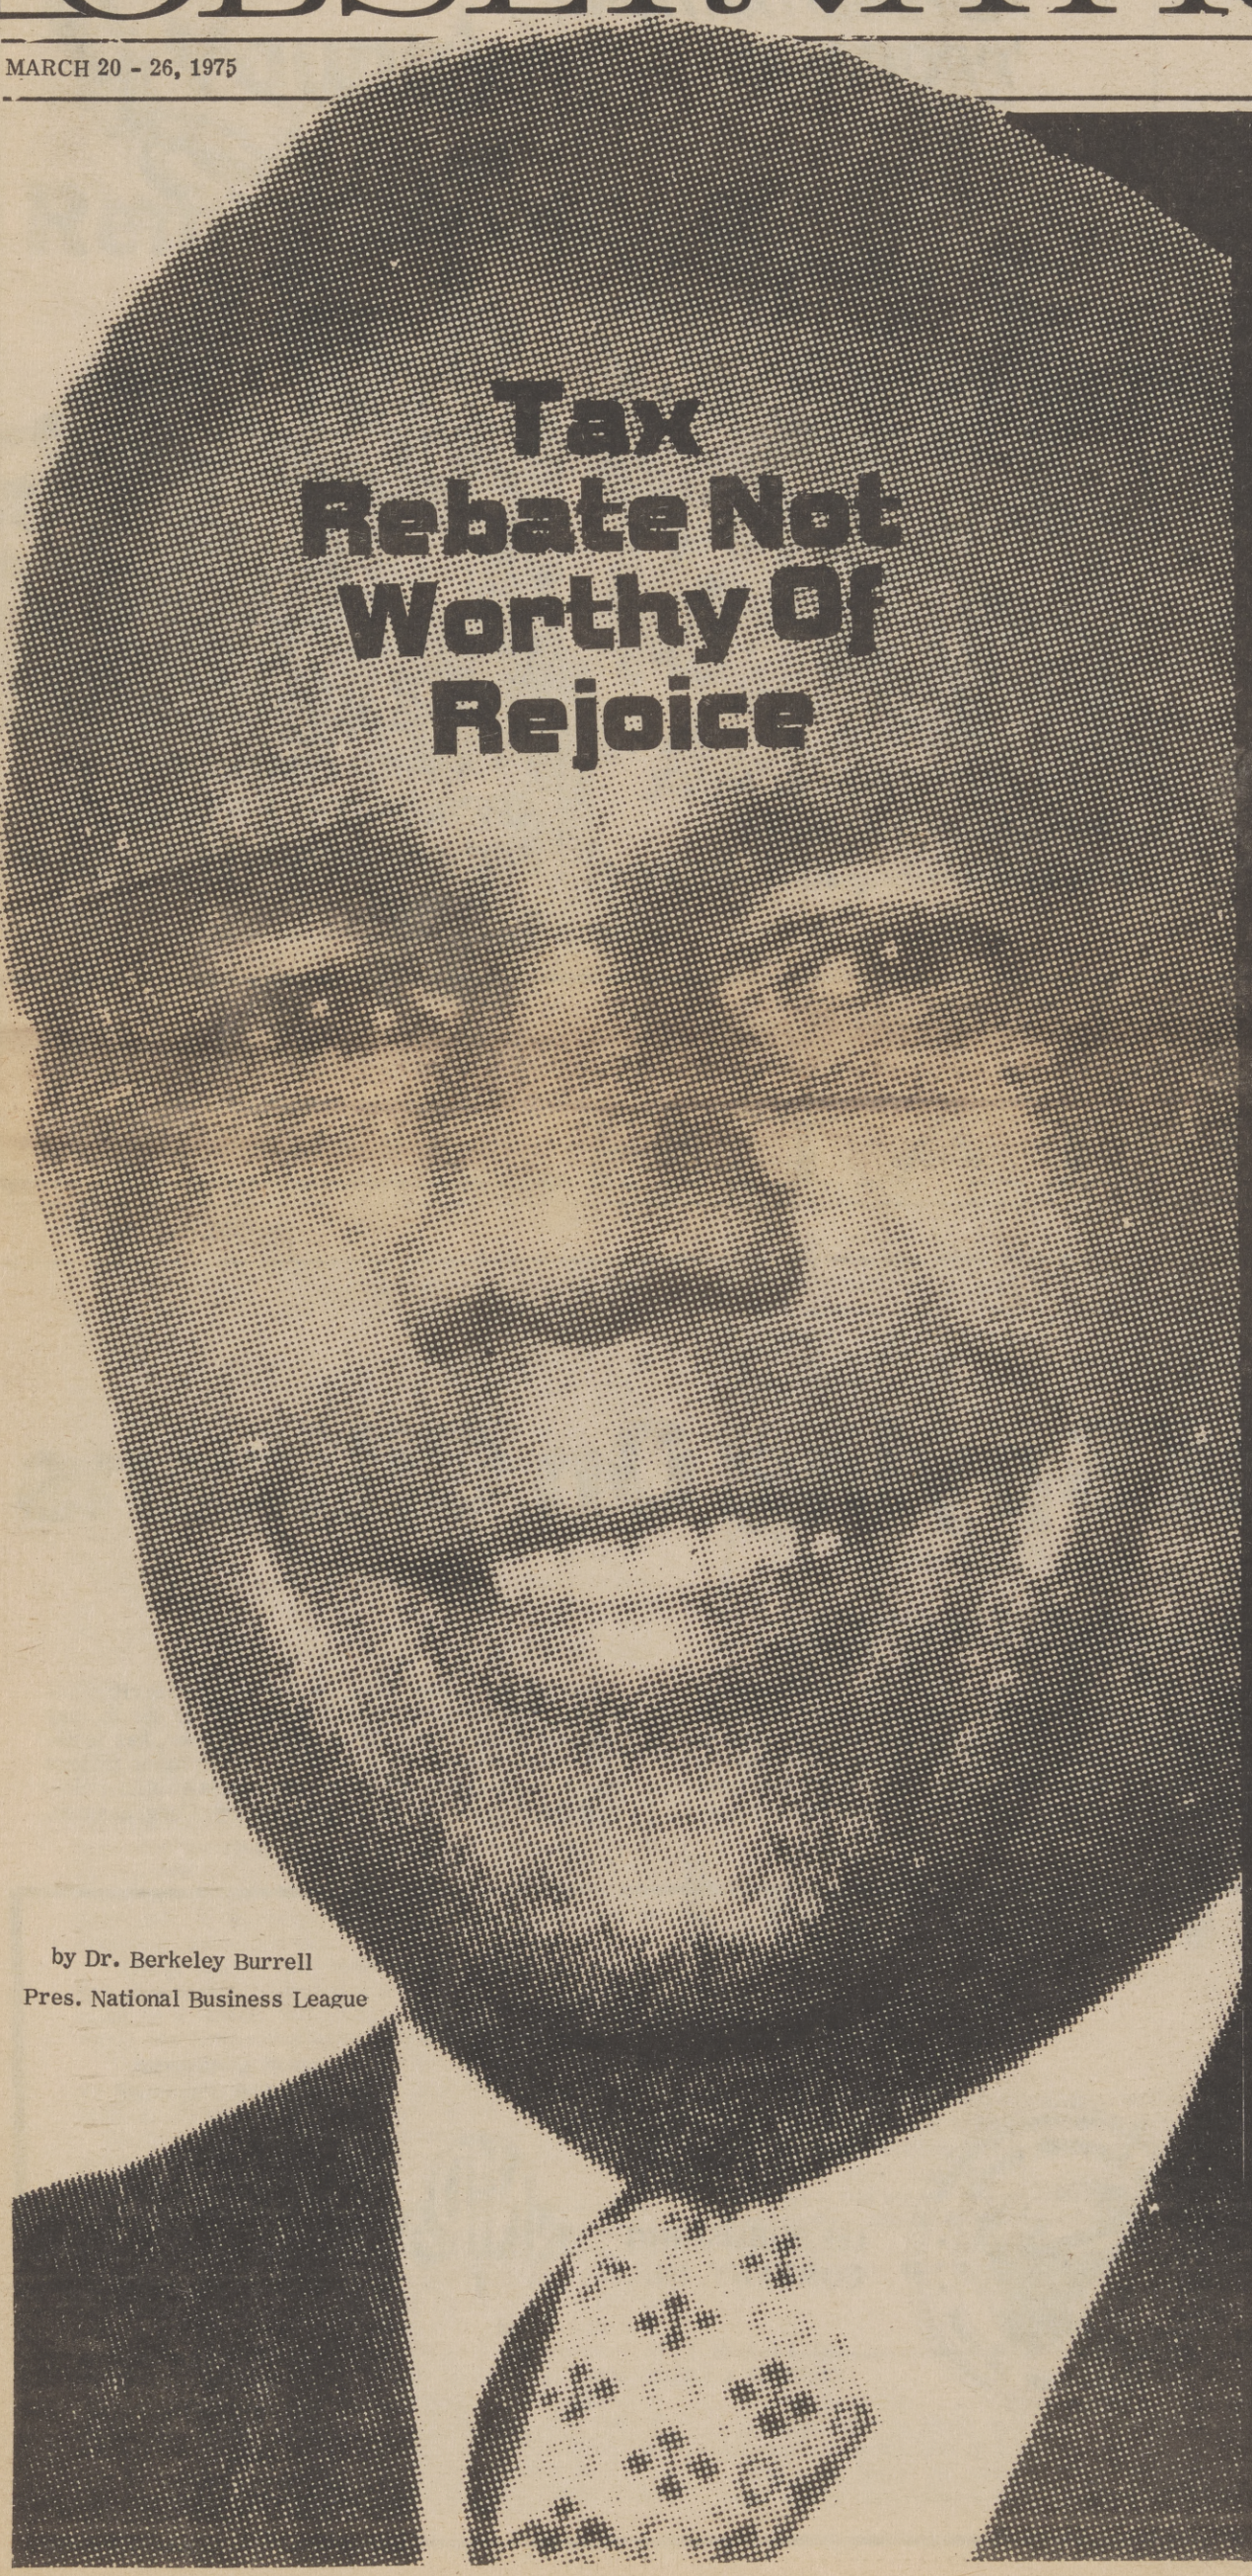
OBSERVATIONS



Tax Rebate Not Worthy Of Rejoice

by Dr. Berkeley Burrell
Pres. National Business League

I am afraid that the government is about to call on we poor and Black folks just once too often. Time and again we have to bear the brunt of yet another ill advised plan to solve the economic and social woes of this country.

Black folks have built this country with the sweat and blood which was spilled in slavery and indentured servitude. They have cultivated the land and provided the manpower to help build the industries of the nation.

Yet, we as a people have been disenfranchised, disadvantaged, un- and under-employed in greater numbers proportionate to our overall population than any other segment of the American populus -- we have been shafted.

That's right -- Shafted! Pat Paulson, despite being white and a comedian, may have hit it on the head. He was talking about big oil magnates giving the American public the shaft while in fact the analogy might apply more appropriately to majority America getting the wealth from the oil and the derricks and other machinery while the poor and Blacks get the shaft.

From all indications, we are going to be the ones who will pay the price of the failing economy. We are certainly the ones who cannot afford to, but sure enough we are going to be the likely targets.

From the sounds of battle which are rising fast from Capitol Hill, road signs are pointing toward inadequate tax rebates, reductions in withholding taxes, less money available for welfare, less money for unemployment and 20,000 fewer public service jobs in the face of a very real possibility of an unemployment rate nationally of 9 per cent. That means another million people in addition to the 7 and one-half million which are already without jobs.

You'd better believe that the majority of that added million will be Black folks because of the lack of marketable skills.

The government is preparing to write a check that I hope the people will not cash. I know for a fact that America's Black populus cannot afford to. I hope that for once we will be ready to return to the United States of America a note of overdraft from the people who will say that the funds are insufficient to cover the cost of another unjust plan.

Poor folks cannot afford to pay more for cars, more at the gas pumps and still let the major oil companies sop up record revenues in the name of energy experimentation. Poor folks can't afford to be laid off and pay more at the grocery store and absorb 20 to 50 per cent increases in utilities and other services.

Poor and Black folks cannot and are not dumb enough to rejoice at the promise of tax rebates to increase their disposable incomes -- when it will probably amount to no more than an average of a hundred dollars per individual, when they are going to have to pay three or four times that for the things they really need.

NO! I cannot believe that we are going to buy that proposition. Economic crisis or not, we are ones who can least afford to pay the price and an insensitive government apparently will choose to ignore the fact.

We understand that the problem is severe, but we deserve something better. The President's economic advisers publicly admit that they are as confused and perplexed by the country's deteriorating economic condition, as are most other Americans. Their proposed Fiscal 1976 Budget proves it.

It calls for extremely tight federal spending, at a time when recessionary pressures on the economy have pushed unemployment to its highest level since 1941. If adopted, this budget will reduce basic benefits to the nation's poor and elderly.

At the same time it does not guarantee that the economy will be stimulated or that inflation will be curbed.

The President has not recommended any new federal programs except for energy. Yet, he has proposed a reduction in federal spending for FY '76 by more than $17 billion. Unfortunately, most of the spending cuts are concentrated in the area of human resources. Income security payments would be cut by nearly $5 billion and combined payments under Medicare and Medicaid would be reduced by $2 billion. Social service programs would be cut by $738 million.

Again, those hit hardest by the economic downturn are now being asked to sacrifice more.

While the Budget and the Annual Report from the President's Council of Economic Advisers indicate that the administration will attempt to fight both inflation and recession at the same time, they strongly suggest that neither will improve this year. The speed with which the recession has penetrated the economy makes it clear that inflation is no longer public enemy number one.

President Ford and his colleagues should stand advised that times are not just tight -- they are unbearable. It will certainly take equal opportunity suffering by all to stimulate this economy and the planners had better be quick about getting down to business.

Support For Dr. Bond

The political quagmire that has bogged down the progress of Dr. James Bond's administration on the campus of California State University, Sacramento, is the same complex situation that has claimed seven chief executives at the university in less than 10 years.

The record of executive resignations at the local college is testimony alone of need of a strong, stable, cool administration like Dr. Bond.

The "dissatisfied faculty" will not find satisfaction with the censor of Bond's presidency. They seek more. They seek power without accountability.

Their politics of referendum is biased, subjective and not intended to logically explore avenues of reasoning that may lead to productive and stable future for the college.

There referendum has served to polarize the CSUS campus community and has even provided off-campus group a forum to additionally complicate solving the real problem of the institution.

The issues raised by the professors could best be addressed by Governor Edmund G. Brown, Jr. who ultimately controls the institution's budget. It is the Governor's sword of austere that has cut out funds for their 800 faculty promotions.

The faculty says that they want promotions based on "seniority" and the Governor says he wants it done according to "academic excellence," a call that this papers supports.

President Bond will overcome the present difficulty facing his administration, but the wounds caused by division and discord will take long in healing.

In the meantime, it is "only the students and the quality of instruction" that suffers during the time of controversy. A poor sacrifice for the ambitions of a few power hungry faculty.

HAWKINS REPORT

Government Spying On Citizens

by AUGUSTUS F. HAWKINS
California's First Black Congressman

If I'm not too far off base, I believe that Ben Franklin, George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln, would be shocked at how mistrustful of its citizens, the country's law enforcement agenices have become.

The very agencies that are supposed to uphold the laws of this nation have admitted to illegal electronic eavesdropping, illegal taping of conversations, illegal phone tapping, illegal tailing of honest citizens, and illegal breaking and entering.

HAWKINS

The big question of course is why? The only reasonable answer I can conjecture is that the police agents of this nation have determined that every law abiding citizen is a potential lawbreaker, and that syping on citizens before they commit an unlawful act is good law enforcement. Or in another manner of speaking, we all need to be spied on, in order to force us to be as pure as the wind.

This may be an oversimplification of a very ugly unconstitutional method of enforcing the law. It also fails to explain why bonafide, national leaders have been treated like common criminals in these illegal police surveillances. It must certainly have been obvious to J. Edgar Hoover, that Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., would not have given the slightest truck to any illegal activity in the respected civil rights movement he led. Rev. King and his followers, were certainly substantially above the cut of any mass movement this country has ever known. Rev. King deserved this nation's most humble thanks for his human rights leadership, and not the low level spying and harassment visited upon him by those who -- were mandated to protect and serve him.

But Martin Luther King, Jr., was a private citizen--even though a public figure. And so, much to our dismay one law enforcement figure after another, has testified before various Congressional committees that not only have they been illegally spying on law abiding citizens, they have also spied on Senators, Congressmen,

Whitney Young Remembered

by VERNON JORDAN
Urban League Executive Director

Whitney Young died four years ago this month, and the loss of this great man to the nation is readily seen in this time of faltering leadership and national confusion.

For Whitney was a great leader, a man who could get things done. And he was a man rooted in an assured sense of self and mission that made his every word and deed ring with authority.

JORDAN

Remembering his great impact, I recently re - read some of his books and other writings, many of which are strikingly relevant today. In this time of rising poverty, for example, it is good to recall his profoundly humanist statement:

"No one is meant to live in poverty -- and no one is meant to tolerate the wrongs of oppression. Where poverty exists, all are poorer; where hate flourishes, all are corrupted; where injustice reigns, all are unequal. Our society is as strong as its weakest link -- thus the links that bind Black and White, poor and rich must be strengthened or we all will perish. Every man is our brother, and every man's burden our own. Now is the time for the poor, the Black, the oppressed, to unite and to turn our society around -- for our own sakes and for society's sake."

And participants in the on-going furor over "quotas" would do well to think about these lines, taken from his discussion of the "Open Society" in his book, "Beyond Racism."

"An Open Society has to be based on equality. This means neither the superficial 'equality of opportunity' that gets so much lip service these days, nor does it mean an impossible equality of achievement that assumes everyone will do as well as everyone else, regardless of innate differences. The measure of equality has to be group achievement: when, in each group in our society, roughly the same proportion of people succeed and fail, then we will have true equality."

Washington officials who want to cut corners on federal spending by trimming social security payments to the aged or raising food stamp costs to the unemployed would do well to re-read Whitney's pioneering views about public spending for public needs:

"I stand in amazement at a nation that produces about a trillion dollars worth of goods and services per year but feels it cannot afford to end poverty or to improve its schools.

"Part of the reason seems to be that we have a strange notion that investing is spending. When a business borrows money to build a new plant, we call it investment and consider it good. But when a city builds a new schoolhouse -- really an investment in the human potentials of its children -- we say that's government spending, therefore bad.

"The problem is not mere semantics, it's a reflection of a basically immoral outlook on human development in a nation that simply can no longer afford to waste its human resources the way it has in the past.

"This country has mastered the art of landing a man on the moon, but it remains ignorant of the ways of feeding all its people and teaching all its children."

Above all, Whitney was a believer. He believed in change, and perhaps more important, in the capacity of this nation to change:

"I do have faith in America -- not so much in a sudden upsurge of morality nor in a new surge toward a greater patriotism, but I believe in the intrinsic intelligence of Americans. I do not believe that we forever need to be confronted by tragedy or crises in order to act. I believe that the evidence is clear. I believe that we as a people, will not wait to be embarassed or pushed by events, into a pasture of decency. I believe that America has the strength to do what is right because it is right. I am convinced that given a kind of collective wisdom and sensitivity, Americans today can be persuaded to act creatively and imaginatively to make democracy work. This is my hope, this is my dream, this is my faith."

Measure To Assist State's Education Woes

BY ASSEMBLYMAN LEON RALPH

State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Wilson Riles will be testifying before the Senate and Assembly this month to encourage the Legislature to grant the Early Childhood Education Program $60 million in expansion funds.

As you may recall, this program was initiated in 1973 to reform and redirect efforts in the area of primary education.

RALPH

In an effort to raise the achievement level of students in grades K-3, the Early Childhood Program addresses the needs of all students as opposed to singling out certain groups. Another good feature about the program is local school districts are given the opportunity to identify their "problem areas," determine their own needs, and the way they would like to meet those needs (with guidance and evaluation by the state).

To achieve this kind of program obviously requires a strong commitment and sound organization on the part of teachers, administrators, parents and local citizens. But, there is growing concern among officials at the Education Department of local communities. It seems that Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr., eliminated this program in his proposed budget.

Currently, 1,400 schools with 260,000 students participate in the program now. More interesting, is the fact that 20 per cent of the children in grades K-3 are covered by the program at a cost of $40 million.

The Superintendent indicates there have been "significant gains in pupil achievement," and that this program warrants expansion. But the reality in this is an economically depressed year and many cities believe that the success of the program is really questionable, what annoys me, is all too often our cities fail to come up with programs that will help a child at Grape Street Elementary School in Watts, or Tweedy Elementary School in South Gate, both which are in my district.

The state must find a way to challenge our old ways to handling educational matters. The state must find a way to eliminate duplication of services to youth, family and children. We must move away from the approach which views the child on a grade level, but rather as a whole. We must reduce the time log which occurs between the funding of children and youth programs by the Legislature and by the Administration.

To achieve some of these goals, I have introduced AB 421, a measure to deal with these problems. The measure is unlike anything that has been pursued in the area of education. It is a unique and unusual piece of Legislation, which in essence creates a new state agency and cabinet position, to handle all family, children and youth services problems.

If there was a state department, whereby a cabinet officer was responsible for all family, children and youth services, we could push for these programs within the Administration. Currently, we are forced to go to committees annually and seek approval of funds. How sad! In my view we have overlooked this kind of measure too long. It's time we give children, families and youth the importance they are due, in the form of an agency that will be specifically responsible for their care.

There are other reasons we need this Legislation. Each year, California spends more than $4 billion providing services for young people. But the number of children who are hungry, neglected or abused, mentally or physically ill, continues to increase. Part of the problem is duplication of services.

Last year, I had an opportunity to get involved in the California Assembly Symposium on services to children and youth, involving 400 experts in the children services field, which resulted in an evaluation of present programs. In that report, it was concluded that it was the size and fragmentation of current efforts that contribute to inadequate services. Also, the report revealed we have not been focusing on the child as a whole. In addition, the report listed several concerns for improvement, which I've incorporated in by bill:

. Improve job opportunities for young people by establishing youth employment centers;

. Provide incentives for unions and employers to expand their trainee and apprenticeship activities;

. Shift the focus of child's services away from the service itself and direct it to the child for whom the service was created;

. Provide a new framework that will enable government and private agencies to strengthen family size.

I am convinced AB 421 is the beginning of something new. If we will fully support families in their essential function of physical, social, educational, moral and spiritual growth, every California youngster will have an equal opportunity to reach his or her full potential.

FORUM

MARCH 20 - 26, 1975

Letters To The Editor

DEAR EDITOR:

As a candidate for re-election as a Trustee on the Los Rio Community College District Board, I wish to express appreciation for your endorsement of me.

Without your support, the outcome of the recent election would not have been successful for me. I shall cherish the editorial you wrote on me and on the apathy of voters.

It is so true that it is frightening. Wherein, I am extremely tired of this position and the price it costs in keeping me from my growing family, I realize our gains are on a sandy foundation instead of a rock one.

Again, a sincere Thank-You for your promotion of my candidacy and a sincere Thank-You to the many friends who made my re-election to the Los Rio Board possible.

Sincerely,
George S. Stewart, D.D.S.

DEAR EDITOR:

I would like to thank you for your endorsement of Measure A on the March 4 ballot.

While we were not successful in securing the passage of the measure, I want to assure you that your support was greatly appreciated by all those associated with our committee.

Yours very truly,
Larry Augusta, Chairman.

Leggett- More Hiring, Tax Cuts

by JAMES J. COAKLEY,
District Representative to Congressman
Robert Leggett

I'm going to spend a few minutes today giving you a brief report from Washington -- what's going on there, and what Bob Leggett's doing there.

I don't have to tell you this isn't a happy time for the nation. Our real Gross National Product is lower than last year, and last year was lower than the year before. Unemployment is twice the level we usually consider reasonable; the apparent brightening of the picture last month was deceptive and simply meant half a million people had given up looking for work. And inflation, as we all know from personal experience, is of an order we've never before seen in this country. On balance, there's no doubt we're in the worst economic state since the days of Herbert Hoover.

In addition to and adding to our economic problems, we have the energy shortage resulting from the quadrupling of foreign crude oil prices. And tied in with this is the problem in the Mideast which could blow up in our faces at any minute.

I don't mean to say the picture is one of the unrelieved gloom, there are some rays of real sunlight. We may not be out of Indochina, but we're closer to it than we've been for more than 20 years. We have tremendous natural resources and the most technologically advanced nation in history. Most importantly, the nation has just come through its more serious constitutional crisis with flying colors.

In my view, and in Bob Leggett's view, Richard Nixon was not the kind of man who should ever have been elected President, and he should never have been re-elected President. It was no coincidence that Nixon's best friends around the world were some of the most repressive dictators. This was a man who had no liking for the democratic principles of the United States Constitution, and who launched a frontal attack on American freedom that was without exaggeration the most serious threat the American system of government has ever faced.

When you have the head of a government violating the inalienable rights of the people, while at the same time declaring himself above the law, you have the textbook definition of a lawless police state.

When the facts become known, when the entire Judiciary Committee, almost the entire Congress, and the large majority of the American people determined that Nixon had to go, the Constitution worked, the system worked, and we changed leaders in mid-term as prescribed by law and without shedding one drop of blood. As a result of surmounting this challenge, Bob feels the American system is stronger today than ever before.

So we have some cause for satisfaction. Another is the large crop of immensely talented and dedicated new members of Congress the American people sent to Washington this year. Bob feels this Congress is the best he's ever worked with, and possibly the best ever.

So now the question is, how does this new activist Congress, and how does Bob Leggett, relate to the Administration? And what can they be expected to produce to help the people who sent them there?

As far as Bob is concerned, we have to understand that he worked in the House with Jerry Ford for twelve years. He likes Ford personally, and voted to confirm him. They're still on a first-name basis.

But at the same time, when they were in the House together, their votes disagreed far more than they agreed. Neither has changed his views very much since Mr. Ford went to the White House. So we have some rather fundamental differences of opinion, with Mr. Ford representing what you might call the traditional Republican values and Bob representing what you might call the modern Democratic values which dominate the current Congress.

You can see the conflict between the two almost every week. For example, this Monday, the House overrode President Ford's recession request to cut $1.2 billion from Federal Health, education, conservation, and job programs. The vote was 371 to 17.

We are going to have an enormous deficit this year -- somewhere between $50 and $80 billion -- and everybody agrees we have to make substantial budget cuts somewhere.

The question is where? I don't mean to be sarcastic, but the Ford approach really does seem to be to try to take it out of the programs that do the most good for the people who need the most -- his proposed food stamp cut was one example -- and to push hard for maximum funding where it will do the least good -- for example, the half-billion supplemental dollars he wants to send to Vietnam and Cambodia.

Bob's priorities -- and the priorities of a majority of the Congress -- are in the opposite direction. Bob voted in caucus recently, to kill the Indochina supplemental outright, and he'll vote the same way on the floor. And the Appropriations Committee cut the $6 billion request for other foreign aid to $3-1/2 billion; it may be cut still further on the floor.

Six months ago, there was a divergence of basic economic thought between the White House and the Democrats. Faced with both inflation and recession, Mr. Ford was inclined to concentrate on holding down inflation -- again, this is a traditional Republican approach -- and to pay the price in recession and high unemployment.

In contrast, the Congressional Democrats argued that we'll never get out of recession if we don't put people back to work so they can buy things and pay taxes rather than just receive unemployment benefits. The Democrats also felt that inflation, which shares the burden relatively evenly, was more fair than recession, which concentrates the burden on those who lose their jobs.

Since that time, the White House has come around to the Congressional point of view, and now everybody favors stimulating the economy by means of a tax cut. There is some difference of opinion on the size of the cut -- the Democrats want about 1/3 bigger cut than the Administration -- but it shouldn't be hard to reach an accommodation on this score. There's a more serious difference of opinion over who should get the benefits: Ford wants the bulk of it to go to high-income families, with those over $40,000 getting the most benefits, while the Democrats want to stimulate spending and help the people who most need it by concentrating the benefits at the lower end of the income scale.

On Wednesday, the Presidential-Congressional divergence expressed itself in several actions of direct importance to all of us here. First, the House passed a $6 billion dollar program to create jobs by accelerated public works, increase in water and sewer grants, reforestation, post office and federal building construction, repair and renovation, public service jobs, summer jobs for youth, and so forth. This will have to be approved by the Senate.

Government Spying On Honest Citizens...

and other elected officials. They have spied on entertainment figures, students, and American travelers to foreign countries.

Apparently, no one in this country has been safe from the hum of the tape recorder secreted in things like martinis, potted palms, and motel bed springs.

J. Fred Butzhardt, one of President Nixon's Watergate lawyers, thinks that Americans are too naive to this issue. He thinks our standards are too high; we expect too much from our public officials. He also says that public morals are too unrealistic. I suppose that it is asking too much to expect law enforcement people to just catch crooks, and leave the rest of us alone to do our law-abiding-best.

I guess I just happen to think that Congresswoman Bella Abzug has the right to talk to anybody she wants to. I also believe that the CIA was over-stepping its legal bounds, when it monitored her public speaking activities, and opener her mail. Even CIA head William Colby, had to admit that the surreptitious opening of Ms. Abzug's mail was clearly not within the lawful bounds of CIA responsibility.

In cases where clear cut criminality is suspected, or involved, law enforcement has a proper responsibility to intervene, in order to protect the public. It has no legal or moral right to spy on law-abiding citizens, doing law-abiding things, however.

This is not a police state yet . . . but uncontrolled, unconstitutional illegal spying, is an excellent way to develop one.

Re-learning Our Heritage

By Dr. Nathaniel Wright, Jr.

Abraham Lincoln, the greatest of our statesmen-presidents and the most immortalized of our nations orators was weaned, nourished and matured educationally on the best-read literature of the Jewish people.

Mr. Lincoln's ethical indoctrination, his sense of history and his vision of greatness were all attributed to his continued almost daily study and research as a youngster and adult in the library which for years, was the only one available to him, the books of the Old and New Testaments, collectively known as the Bible.

Recognized as the most extensive written body of ethical insight inherited from the ancient world, this same collection of books served as the literary model not only for Abraham Lincoln but also for countless other orators and statesmen of our modern world.

Regardless of the translations the biblical literature has been consistent with the dictum of Phillips Brooks that the clarity and beauty of expression should always befit the excellence of God's word. It is for this reason that generations which have been reared upon this most widely read literature in the world have produced our most memorable poets, orators and sages.

With only this simple background in mind, it would seem reasonable that all of our young people today should be introduced to and immeshed in this material most basic to the Hebrew-Christian heritage and which gives central shaping at least to our idealized way of life.

We wonder today why we have so many defections from respect for the best values which we have known, as evidenced from our White House to our scandalously over crowded jails. Yet we continue to isolate whole generations from the ethical roots of what some would call our European-American civilization.

One of the most striking differences between the two Republican presidents, Abraham Lincoln and Richard M. Nixon, is in the degree to which their lives were absorbed in and fed by both the biblical ethical teachings and the biblical capacity to lift its reader's mind and imagination to what the Hebrew patriarch Abraham regarded as an ideal human community "whose builder and maker is God."

If Watergate teaches the legal, religious, civic and educational establishment one overriding lesson, perhaps it should be this: That a people set adrift too far from their familiar shores may perish. Or, to put it another way, a tree or a vine long removed from the sustaining nourishment of its roots will wither and decay.

There is no good reason why the biblical literature should not and could not be taught in all of our elementary and secondary schools, whether public or private. Indeed the reason for its establishment in every curriculism as a fundamental part of our priceless heritage are overwhelming.

Perhaps, the most serious practical problem rests with our religious organizations which jealously and selfishly claim that this incomparable historical literature is sacred to them alone. Such thinking is sheer nonsense!

It is also grossly self-defeating. Many secular on non-religious universities have taught for years courses on "The Bible as Literature." This probably could also be done, without breaking any existing laws, in most of our public schools.

What is more important, however, is that the ethical moorings of our way of life have no business being locked up today in our presently half-empty synagouges and churches. The biblical teachings are the priceless foundational inheritance of all for whom we have the responsibility of molding into able and thoughtful citizens, into family-makers and into the architects of the future shape of our society.

The biblical literature is not doctrinnaire. It is the the incomparable story of an incessant search for truth and ultimate meaning by people representing the twin fountains of our society Hebrew-Christian sources. It is a body of literature which is at once radically revolutionary and superlatively conservative. It is at the same time practical and contemplative, philosophical and detailed. Some have found, and will doubtless continue to find, in it profound religious meanings for their lives. There is no crime in this.

Still it may be, whether criminal or not, no less than suicide for our increasingly imperilled way of life for millions of our young people to be brought up almost, totally ignorant of the greatest "best seller" which the world has ever known.

For any society of people to endure and prospect, they must see, acknowledge and share some common roots. Such non-controversial, and secular oriented new books similar to Walter Russell Bowie's old classic, "The Story of the Bible," published more than a generation ago, need to be prepared to assit classrooms today to claim the most essential and most literally neglected vehicle for human growth which should be available to every citizen in our society.

This ancient story of the struggles of the Hebrew people to find the best society which life might afford must, in some way, become once more the common civic and ethical heritage of us all.

Creative Forgiveness

by REV. VINCENT THOMPSON

LUKE 23:34 - "Father, Forgive them; . . . they know not . . ." The crucified Christ backed his prayer forgiveness of his enemies with the argument -- "for they know not what they do."

The injured are generally alive only to their own side of the case; and they see only those circumstances which tend to place the conduct of the opposite party in the worst light.

At the moment the pain inflicted by His enemies was at the worst.

Jesus was at His best, seeking excuses for their conduct.

Some years ago, a well meaning individual hit upon what he felt to be a sure-fire solution to the problems of the world.

He said that he would like to gather all the people of the world, the more than three and one half billion of them, into a vast amphitheatre; and there he would have the most capable person in the world read to that tremendous audience in dramatic and forceful manner Christ's parable of the Good Samaritan; Then he would say to the people of the world, "Go and do thou likewise," that is, be kind to one another. And with that, he would send them home.

Few of us feel that it would do much good. We question that the mere telling of a story of a man who helped his neighbor ages ago, excellent story though that is, would in itself, do much enoble the heart of him who hears it.

We fervently wish that it were possible to gather all the people of the world together into one place; around the cross of Christ on Calvary. We would devoutly pray that, while they were there, they might all be unforgettably impressed with the horror of the sin of humanity and with the boundless love and forgiving spirit of God in Christ.

We as Christians, must remember what Christ has done for us. We must "forgive our enemies," and "take up his cross" and follow Him. Jesus said, Father forgive them, for they know not what they do. Follow Jesus today.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE READING ROOM

For Every Good Friday, There's Easter

by Lt. COL. LEE W. BACKMAN

The Easter season once again brings messages of God's faithfulness to men. To the Christian, the celebration of Easter is a recollection of the determination of Christ to fulfill His mission in life and the confidence He brings to those who love and hope in Him.

These are times when belief, love and hope are greatly needed by all men. It is another period in man's history when great historical and religious changes test his deepest convictions. While he is conquering the mysteries of the universe in space, and thinking with the help of machines that calculate with a speed that lies beyond his own capabilities, man is also being conquered by the problems caused by his own inventions.

Deteriorating cities, unhealthy air, polluted waters, hungry people, disillusioned youth, and violent citizens all severly test the determination of men of good will to find the meaning and value of life.

It is, therefore, a challenging time for men and women with religious commitments. It is a challenging time for re-dedication to the God who has proven in times past to be worthy of the belief, love and hope that men have put in Him. He has delivered His people before. He will do it again. He has conquered despair before. He will do it again. He has overcome death before. He will do it again.

For every dark Good Friday, there is the hope of Easter.

Hairstyles

Because of the expense of the full wig, and the up-keep on it, hairpieces have gained a lot of popularity. A braid, a bun, a ponytail, a chignon, a French twist, a fall -- all of these can be found in inexpensive pin-on hairpieces made of synthetic fibers. (You can get them in real hair, too, but they cost more and have to have the same "send out" cleaning as full wigs). The synthetics look like real hair, and if treated with care and respect, can last for years.

Synthetic hairpieces are generally made of Dynel or a blend of Dynel and Acetate, and come in many shades and styles. They are relatively inexpensive (about $5 to $45). They are easy to wash and style yourself. They can be bought in almost any salon, department store, or even drug stores.

If you decide on a synthetic hairpiece, there are a few things to keep in mind when cleaning or restyling them.

1. If you buy a long switch, do not remove the band at the open end.
2. Let the hair piece soak for a few moments in a bowl of warm suds, and wash it gently being careful not to tangle the strands.
3. Rinse it well, and shake it lightly.
4. If its a switch, you might try putting it in a silk stocking and hang it up to drip dry.
5. Now style it in your favorite style and it's ready to wear. When you're not wearing your hairpiece, keep it on a styrofoam head or in its case.

If you have trouble keeping your hairpiece secure on your head, here is a trick you might find helpful. Before attaching your hairpiece, make two pincurls with your own hair. Make them on top of your head or back on the crown -- depending on where you attach your hairpiece. Then use two bobby pins for each pincurl, placed in criss-cross fashion. Now you can anchor your hairpiece onto these pincurls, so it won't fall off.

A wig or hairpiece should not be used as a cover-up for uncleanliness. Your hair should be kept clean, and it should be given daily brushing. Make sure to keep your brushes clean too.

American Women Want Fewer Children

American women want fewer children than their mothers did, but they are far from ready to give them up.

These and other attitudes of women to their role in the family and society emerge sharply from the Virginia Slims American Women's Opinion Poll, Volume III, which has just been released. Virginia Slims commissioned the Poll to The Roper Organization, Inc., which interviewed a cross-section of 3,000 women and 1,000 men and compated the results with 1941 and 1952 data culled from The Roper Archives.

The Poll reveals that in 1941 and during the post war "baby boom" in 1952, two of every three women thought the ideal family contained a mother, father and three or more children. Today, however, less than half of women (46%) think families should have three or more children, while the percentage advocating two-children families has nearly doubled from 25% in 1952 to 45% currently.

However, only one of every 33 women (3%) thinks a family should have just one child and an even smaller number, 1 of every 100 (1%), thinks the ideal family is without children. This near-unanimous rejection of one child and no child families permeates all age, income, education, and marital status groups, including single, separated or divorced and young women.

Comparison of current thinking with that of women 20 and 30 years ago discloses little change in attitudes to three children families, about one fourth of women in 1941, 1952 and 1974 considering this total ideal.

However, approval of families with four or more children has plummeted -- from over two fifths of all women in 1941 (41%) and 1952 (42%) to less than one of every four women (24%) in 1974.

ymally noted that the people suffer- from economic slowdowns are al- ways the same - - namely the poor and minorities.

"The victims of econome slowdown in this country are always the same, but they will need even more protection if our ever-expanding economy does not expand any more," Dymally warned.

He outlined to the gathering, that a complex turn of world events compounded by demands of underdeveloped nations for their fair share of the world's market has placed a strange hold on the domestic economy.

"The economic theory of mercantilism is dead . . . States seek to expand their trading opportunities and increase their volume, yet all exercise controls in order to advance their political purpose," said Dymally.

Dymally stressed that international trade was vital to the economic growth of California and pledged himself to work towards insuring a healthier economic climate in the future.

Following Dymally's speech, he was presented the Kappa Alpha Phi "Man of the Year Award," honoring him for his election as the State's first Black Lieutenant Governor.

Choosing A Babysitter

Hiring a babysitter is one of the most important decisions a mother will make. Whether absent from her home for 30 minutes or for a weekend, a mother wants someone who can take responsibility during that period for the health, welfare and safety of her child. It can, however, be difficult to find the person exactly suited to a mother's needs.

If you are or will be in need of a babysitter, the following will help you in your selection.

When considering what you need in a babysitter, the first question you should decide is if you want a sitter who can handle any situation, including small emergencies, that might arise.

Would you want your babysitter to call you if your child hurt his knee, for example, or would you prefer her to handle it, herself?

Do you prefer an older, mature woman who has children and possibly grandchildren -- of her own and therefore is accustomed to caring for children, or would you prefer an active teenager?

And if you have an infant, you may want someone experienced in caring for small babies.

The best sitter is someone you already know and trust. Consider, therefore, the young girls in your neighborhood or the older women among your acquaintances who might be interested and suitable.

You also might ask your friends if they can suggest someone. If neither of these methods works, however, there are other reliable sources.

A student nurse recommended, by a local hospital, for example, might like to supplement her income. This may be done by calling the office of a nearby high school or college, or youth groups such as the Jack and Jill organization.

Some local branches of the Young Women's Christian Association may have lists of babysitters. Sometimes, the leader of the local branch of the Urban League may know of potential babysitters, and you can check community church groups.

Too, some communities have commercial agencies that place adult sitters, although these will cost more, and are listed in the classified telephone directory.

NEW WEEKLY COLUMN

Women On The Move

by ASA LOVE

A few months ago, Sacramento gave birth to a new organization, Black Women Organized for Political Action (BWOPA). The group hosted its first event in a "double header" on March 7, by presenting C. Delores Tucker, Secretary of State of Pennsylvania, in a Prayer Breakfast in the am., and an evening invitational event in the p.m. for Black women only.

The breakfast crowd looking over the rainy city from the Top of the Cosmo, included some of Sacramento's finest. Assemblyman Willie Brown, whose task was to introduce the honored guest, elegantly entertained the group with glowing accolades about Mrs. Tucker in lieu of her comments. She was silenced with laryngitis and Willie did his thing.

The evening event drew at least 125 women to the home of Sarah Ewell Payton, M.D. (known as Payton's Palace). The parking service rendered by charming men who met the ladies at their cars with open umbrellas protected lovely frocks was out of sight. The champagne pourers (men) moved unobstrusively through the crowd of women deligently insuring that every glass stayed full. What an evening . . .

Engineering Secret. Don't let the high school counselors in on where you got your information but they now have applications for the Dow-Davis Chemical Engineering Workshop, which will be held at UC Davis, June 15-20. The program is for highly qualified low income minority high school students interested in Engineering who has demonstrated academic potential. Sure would like to see a daughter or two among the thirty students to be served.

Did you see that bad dress that Alice Dymally had on Saturday night at the Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity Dinner? Grace Jones was pretty snazzie too. Lt. Gov. Dymally's remarks were brief. MC Palmer Sullins' jokes were racy and the music was superb . . . what more could you want in one evening?

NC&W along with BWOPA sisters are keeping an eye on the California Commission on the Status of Women, looking for a little color to show up in their programming. Wonder why the Commission is avoiding this issue? Well, maybe they have a housing or employment program for minority women on the drawing board . . . or somewhere.

Patsy Fulcher, Obledo's lovely deputy is a welcome addition to the Sacramento area. She knows her business about women's matters and we need that . . . Welcome Patsy.

We are not going to miss our appointments gang. Resumes are due right now for the Sacramento School Board. Carlotta Mellon, Gov. Brown's appointment secretary, could use some more resumes from Blacks for the Governor's Commissions. Who knows, there could be some surprises coming up soon. If you are not sure of what to apply for, David Helms, Governor's handsome Assistant, will give you the "cooks tour" . . . Mighty tasty, mighty tasty hour. He is currently out of the office recovering from a minor accident . . . We look forward to your return, David.

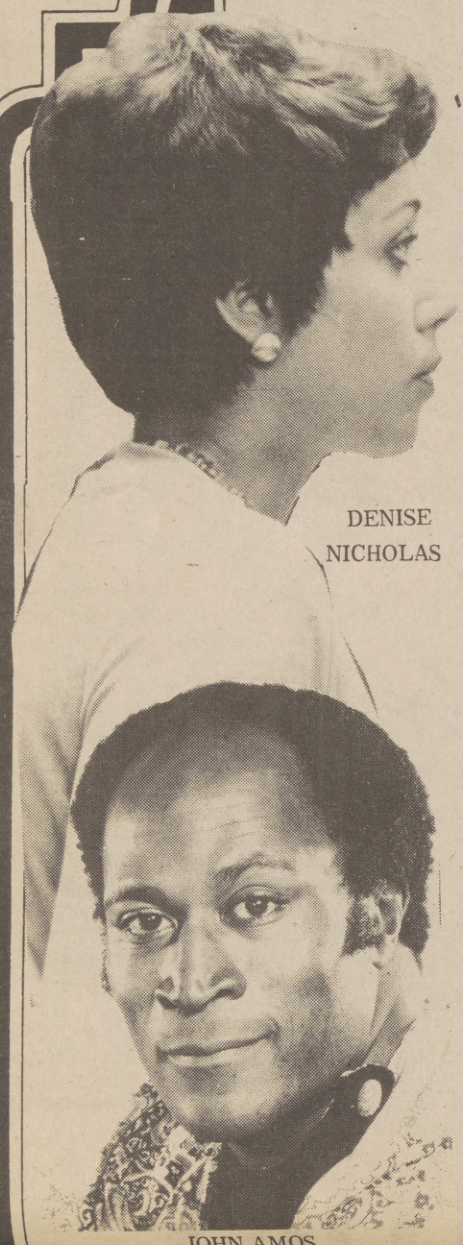
'LET'S DO IT AGAIN'

Top Stars In New Movie



DENISE NICHOLAS

JOHN AMOS

JIMMY WALKER

You will know very early in the new comedy "Let's Do It Again," that the beautiful ladies are going to have a lot to do with what goes on.

First, there's factory worker, Bill Cosby crashing a fork lift when he notices long-limbed Jayne Kennedy ambling by in a mini skirt.

Then Cosby and actor-director Sidney Poitier, fail to tell their wives, played by Denise Nicholas and Lee Chamberlin, they plan to bet a bundle of money on a boxing match in which Jimmy "J.J." Walker, is one of the fighters.

Also, there are a couple of high-rolling gamblers, played by John Amos and Calvin Lockhart, who naturally have their full complements of fight game groupies, including talented Talya Ferro who counts Calvin's cash for him.

Actresses who have complained that their roles haven't been important in most recent films will bite their tongues after seeing "Let's Do It Again."

It is the sisters in the Sons and Daughters of Chaka Lodge who make their leader Ossie Davis include a Day Care Center in the new building plan. And it is those wives who join Poitier and Cobsy in some hilarious chicanery to convert a little bit of money into a lot of money.

All in all, the new Richard Wesley screenplay proves that behind every good man there is a woman -- even when the guys are two fun loving fund raisers dodging hoodlums and unfriendly policemen.

"Let's Do It Again," is currently filming in Hollywood, and will have brief location photography in Atlanta and New Orleans. Mel Tucker is producer. Warner Bros. will release the comedy this summer.

And about those beautiful ladies: Denise Nicholas starred for five years on the "Room 222" TV series and recently co-starred with Dean Martin in "Mr. Ricco." Lee Chamberlain was Madam Zenobia in last year's hit comedy "Uptown Saturday Night." Jayne Kennedy was one of Dean Martin's Dinga-Ling girls on television.

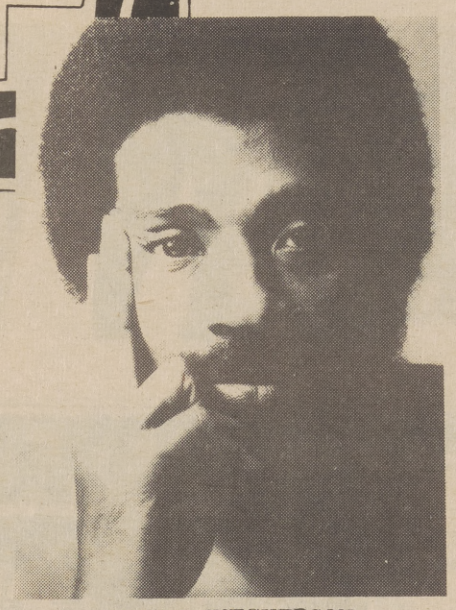
MUSIC PERSONALITIES



BOBBY HUTCHERSON

Bobby Hutcherson

Like so many artists featured on Blue Note Records, Bobby Hutcherson has become a symbol of advancement and evolution on the instrument of his choice. What Freddie Hubbard is to the trumpet, Andrew Hill to the piano and Joe Henderson to the tenor saxophone, Bobby is to the vibraphone -- and also, incidentally, to the marimba, an instrument he has done much to revive in progressive music.

He was born January 27, 1941 in Los Angeles and raised in nearby Pasadena. Bobby took a few piano lessons when he was about nine years old, but did not become seriously interested in music until he heard a record by Milt Jackson. That was in 1956, when Bobby was 15. Soon he had his own set of vibes and was playing local dances and concerts.

A pianist, Terry Trotter, helped him expand his harmonic knowledge. He also studied vibes informally for a while with Dave Pike.

After gigging around Los Angeles for some time with Curtis Amy, Charles Lloyd and others, Bobby joined the Al Grey-Billy Mitchell combo. On the road with this group, he earned wide exposure in 1960-61, all the way from San Francisco to New York's since-defunct Birdland. After leaving the Grey-Mitchell unit, he decided to stay around New York, where he played off and on for a year, mainly with Jackie McLean.

During his second year in New York, Bobby worked with other combos, including those of Archie Shepp, Hank Mobley, Charles Tolliver and Grachan Moncur III. Returning to the West Coast, he free-lanced with small groups. He also played in two notable big bands, Gil Fuller's orchestra at the Monterey Jazz Festival in 1964, and later with Gerald Wilson's all-star ensemble.

Hutcherson won the 1964 Down Beat critics poll as the vibes man most deserving of wider recognition. In May, 1966, he won an award from Jazz Magazine as the overall best vibraphonist in the present jazz scene.

Bobby has been widely acclaimed for his fresh, free style, which bears less of a resemblance to the widely-imitated Milt Jackson than that of any other vibraphonist in the past few years. His use of four mallets in some of his performances has been a notable characteristic. His technical desterity has enabled him to carry out ideas that would present insurmountable problems to lesser musicians.

Each album from Bobby Hutcherson is a vivid example of his strongly felt "music as evolution" philosophy, with his newly released "Linger Lane," representing another step in the evolutionary process.

Bobby Hutcherson opens your mind.

DONALD BYRD

Donald Byrd

Donald Byrd was born December 9, 1932, in Detroit, the son of a Methodist minister. After a brief enrollment at Wayne State University, he joined the Air Force at 18, and played in the Air Force Band in New York from 1951-54.

After his discharge, and a short-lived return to Detroit, Byrd went back to New York and played with Thelonious Monk, Kenny Clarke and Oscar Pettiford. He later joined Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers and, still later, Max Roach, which led him to a contract with Blue Note. Along the way, Byrd returned to school, earning a Bachelor of Music degree and, ultimately, a Master's degree in Music Education from the Manhattan School of Music.

Byrd became a star of international magnitude when he performed at festivals in Belgium and the French Riviera in the late 50's. He also appeared extensively throughout Scandinavia and in motion pictures in France and Germany. In Paris, he studied composition with Nadia Boulanger, whose distinguished alumni include Aaron Copland and George Gershwin.

Byrd has been a jazz staple (and a solid and continuous poll and award winner) for Blue Note for over twenty years, and while he has always loved playing, as both sideman and leader, he has not allowed other aspects of his personality to lie idle. A concerned and intellectually questing man, Byrd has immersed himself in Afro-American music, its history and culture, becoming one of the country's authorities on ethnomusicology.

His continuing commitment to education culminated in his earning a Ph. D. in college teaching and administration from Columbia University's School of Education in 1971.

At one time the chairman of the Black Music department at Howard University in Washington, D. C., Byrd does club dates and concerts with his band and, in a departure from the route most musicians go, lectures extensively on education, Black music and law as it pertains to music and musicians. He has completed two years of law school.

When Byrd and his band came into a city for an appearance, their visit usually comprises not only appearing at a club or concert hall, but also lectures and workshops at local colleges and universities.

Byrd has also entered the production field, producing a group made up of several of his former students at Howard for Fantasy.

In 1963, Blue Note issued his milestone album, "A New Perspective," which became one of the most influential Black music albums ever (the music has formed the basis for ballet works and film scores); his "Black Byrd" album, issued by Blue Note in 1973, became the biggest selling album in the thirty-five year history of that venerable label and broke new ground for the artist, bringing him to pop and R&B audiences.

His album "Street Lady," exposed him to an even greater number of fans. Now comes "Stepping Into Tomorrow," and American contemporary music will never be the same.

Marlena Shaw

Marlena Shaw got her first professional break in show business at Harlem's renowned Apollo Theatre. She was ten years old when the spotlight hit her. Her appearance at the Apollo brought her to the attention of the talent booker for Ralph Cooper's "Spotlight On Harlem" TV show, and she made several appearances on that program.

She then hit the road with her trumpeter uncle, Jimmy Burgess, until her grandmother finally called a halt to it.

Marlena returned to her hometown, New Rochelle, New York, and confined her performing to her Baptist church choir and local talent shows.

In 1965, Marlena decided to try her professional wings again, and she began playing dates in nightclubs along the East Coast. Shortly after resuming performing, Marlena was signed to a contract with Cadet Records. Her first Cadet single, "Wade In The Water," brought Marlena heavy attention from the general public. Following the overwhelming success of the instrumental rendition of "Mercy, Mercy" by Cannonball Adderley, Marlena brought disc jockeys, critics, and listeners to their feet with her vocal rendition.

More important than that, the record brought her to the attention of Count Basie. Basie hired Marlena without an audition. At a time when big bands with Basie's band to standing room only audiences and smash notices in this country as well as Europe.

She considers the experience of traveling with a big band for more than four years, doing one night stands, invaluable. The memories of that, such as the time when a wealthy millionaire paid for Basie's band and Marlena to come to England for a one night performance at his daughter's wedding, are among the highlights of her career to date.

When Blue Note Records offered her a recording contract in 1972, Marlena was faced with a difficult decision--to stay with the security that Basie's band offered her or to strike out on her own.

"It was simply a now or never situation," Marlena explains, "I must admit it was good for my ego to be the first female vocalist to be offered a contract with the label, but that isn't why I made the decision to try it on my own. I just knew that I was ready and in order to develop further as an artist, it was a necessary step."

Marlena has recorded two albums for Blue Note, "Marlena" and "From The Depths of My Soul," and on the way has matured into one of the most inventive and moving singers around.

Now comes "Who Is This Bitch Anyway?," and a new regal Marlena emerges, singing from her soul, singing from experience.

The girl's been hurt. The girl's known love's torment and love's joy. Now it's time for you to know the incredible Marlena Shaw.

HORACE SILVER

Silver: Blues, Bop And More

Watching Horace Silver play the piano is an experience that goes beyond the music itself. Silver plays, how shall I say it, muscularly, hunched over the piano, sweat pouring from an already thin body. As he attacks the piano, coaxing from it percussive and yet eerily melodic sounds, one cannot help but notice that Horace Silver does not merely plays the piano--he becomes "part" of the piano.

I can remember sitting in smoky New York clubs listening to Silver perform such tunes as "Sister Sadie," "Doodlin' " and (for me, his magnum opus) "Song For My Father" and being moved beyond words by what this small, birdlike man with delicate features and hands that seem to go on forever was doing. For what he was doing was creating a catalogue right there in front of me, a history of American music, from the slave shouts and hollers that predate even the blues, to gospel, to bop and beyond. Around me people were finger-popping, nodding their heads, while a history lesson was being given by one Mr. Horace Silver.

Born Horace Ward Martin Tavares Silver in 1928, Silver was first exposed to music in his hometown of Norwalk, Connecticut. His first solo professional gig was with Stan Getz in 1950-51. Silver, who soon became a regular New York jazzman, won the Downbeat New Star Pianist Award in 1954--and he's never been headed since.

Silver actually invented a whole school of jazz, the so-called soul school which flourished in the late fifties and early sixties. His groups were truly seminal aggregations, as they spawned tune upon funky tune, blues upon blues -- and influenced such stellar performers as Art Farmer, Hank Mobley, Louis Hayes (later to find funky fame with Cannonball Adderley), Blue Mitchell, Joe Henderson, Stanley Turrentine, Roy Brooks, Mickey Roker and Billy Cobham, all of whom played with Silver.

Later on, he developed into other styles--playing bossa nova cum funk on his classic "Song For My Father" (listen to the first couple of bars of "Rickey Don't Lose That Number" and see who Steely Dan listens to), doing more extensive cuts, choral passages, an extended work "The United States of Mind," spread over three albums, "That Healin' Felling," "Total Response" and "Phase III 'All.' "

Yet, with Silver, there is always the insistent beat

Out now with still another departure for him, getting down "into the street" with brass, Horace Silver remains in the fore-front of that small collection of instrumentalists who deserve to be called legends.

Connie Stevens - Talent At Reno

Sexy songstress Connie Stevens brings her fast moving musical show to Harrah's Reno, March 20 - April 2.

She'll be joined by comic Sammy Shore and the John Carleton Orchestra during her 8:15 and midnight shows.

Connie Stevens is a rare combination of talent, beauty and brains. Always feminine and seemingly fragile, she has mastered the "show biz" world. She's been a smash on Broadway, television, records, night clubs and in movies and theatre-in-the round.

She explained, "I want to wear the pretty dresses and sing the songs, but when you come right down to it, it's the star of the show who makes the decisions. The star has to hype everyone else up . . . " Her enthusiasm and honesty have endeared her to night club audiences. "I sometimes feel I'm more honest out there before an audience . . .," she said. "I feel I've given more of myself."

Next it's Jim Nabors in Harrah's Reno, April 3 - 16, followed by Don Rickles and Frank Sinatra, Jr., April 17 - 30.

'Sojourner' To Be Presented March 30

Vinnette Carroll stars as Sojourner Truth, a liberated slave and active Abolitionist -- a woman who couldn't write her own name but who left her indelible mark on American history -- in "Sojourner," the sixth historical special in "The American Parade" series, of hour-long primetime programs dealing with major American historical themes and being presented over a three-year period in conjunction with the nation's 1976 Bicentennial.

"Sojourner" will be presented Sunday, March 30, 9:30 - 10:30 p.m., on the CBS Television Network.

Eaton Corporation is the sponsor of "The American Parade," which is produced by CBS news for the Network. Lois Bianchi is the producer of "Sojourner." Joel Heller is executive producer of "The American Parade."

The special was directed by Peter Levin and written by Bill Gunn.

Also featured in the broadcast, is Frances Sternhagen as Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Sojourner, who took her name and mission as a God-given challenge, felt it was her job in life to preach to all people the evils and causes of slavery and then the failings and shortcomings of freedom. With the 13th Amendment to the Constitution, President Lincoln freed the slaves. Sojourner then campaigned for the people now freed from bondage to be given land for a productive life and the knowledge to deal with their new rights.

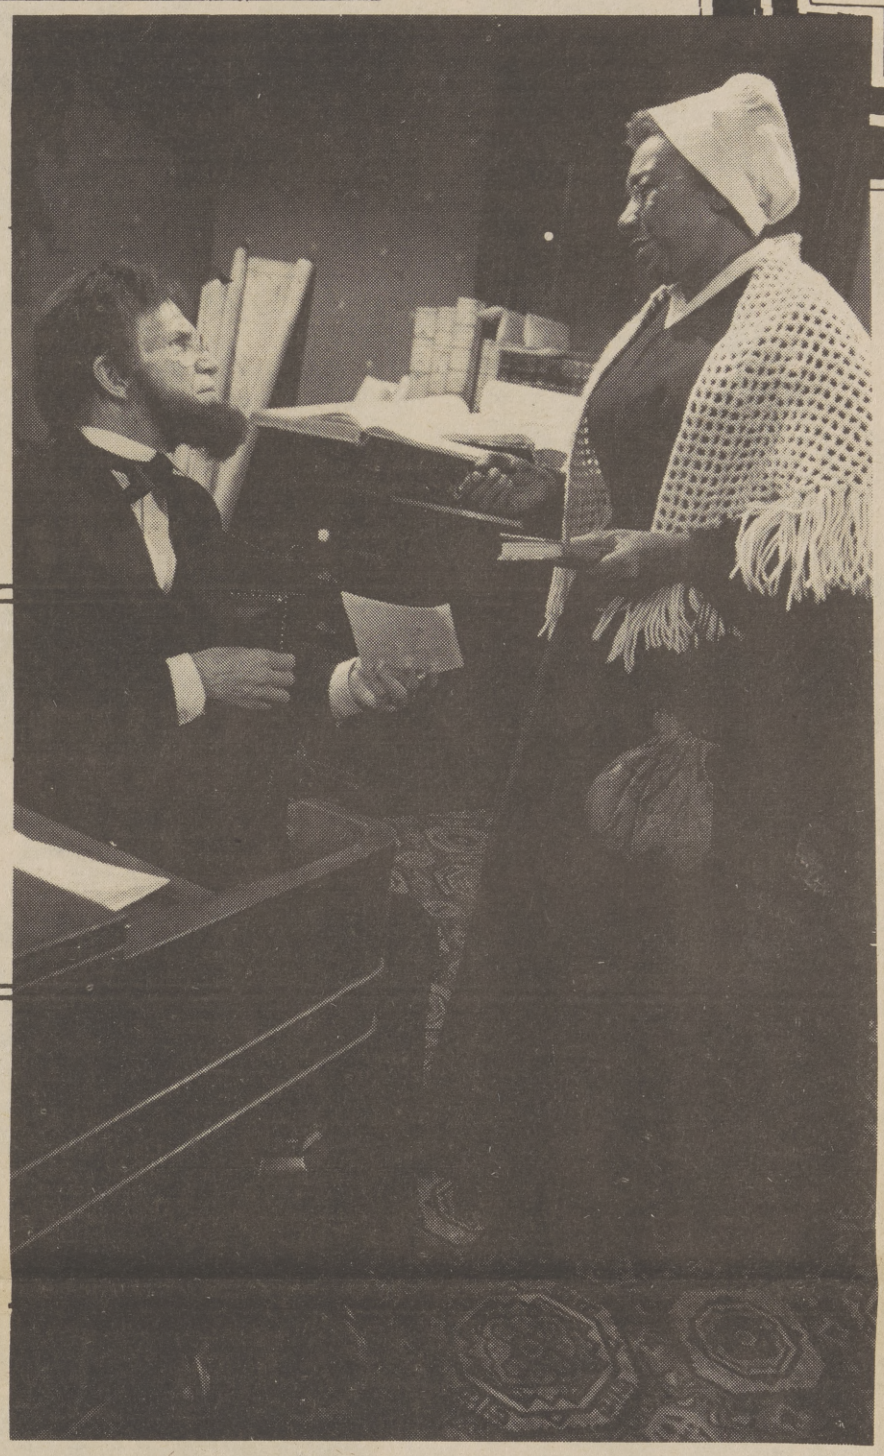
Vinette Carroll portrays Sojourner Truth for the second time. She originally starred in the role in "We, The Women," the first special of "The American Parade" series on the Network. Miss Carroll, who is director and artistic director of the Urban Arts Corps, has worked on many plays both in New York and abroad, including the revue "Don't Bother Me, I Can't Cope" for Broadway.

She won an Obie for her performance in the New York production of "Moon on A Rainbow Shawl" and has numerous Broadway credits, including appearances in "Small War on Murray Hill," and "Jolly's Progress."

Her film credits include "One Potato, Two Potato," Up the Down Staircase," and "Alice's Restaurant." She won an Emmy Award for "conceiving, adapting and supervising the broadcast "Beyond The Blues."

Frances Sternhagen, currently appearing in the play "Equus" on Broadway, enjoys many other Broadway credits and received a Tony Award last season for her performance in "The Good Doctor."

Bill Gunn, who wrote the script for "Sojourner," authored the current New York play "Black Picture Show," and is also an Emmy winner for his scripting of "Johannas." He wrote the films "The Landlord," "Angel Levine," and "Ganja & Hess."



Vinette Carroll portrays Sojourner Truth, a liberated slave who made a deep impression on President Abraham Lincoln, played by Fred Stuthman, in "Sojourner," the sixth historical special in "The American Parade" series produced for the CBS Television Network by CBS News, to be seen Sunday, March 30, 9:30 - 10:30 p.m., on Channel 10.

About 300 students attended the Sacramento Area Black Educators (SABE) and Delta Sigma Theta, Inc.'s day-long Career and Guidance Conference held last Saturday, at Luther Burbank Senior High School.

The Conference was called to alert June graduates to the potentials of higher education and to inform job seekers of professions and vocations available within the Sacramento Area.

"Our country is currently in the throngs of economic recession. The effects of this recession on Black youth, has been particularly disastrous," said Dr. Rex Fortune, associate superintendent of public instruction and president of the SABE.

The Conference was organized by (SABE) and Delta Sigma Theta to help combat the growing number of Black unemployed youth.

"Adequate job training is critical for Black youth. The day has arrived when unskilled Blacks cannot obtain even the most menial form of employment," said Fortune in a release to newspersons.

The Conference included representatives from education, business and government.

Among those attending were Ben Amos, affirmative action coordinator for the California Department of Food and Agriculture, Otis Loggins of the Department of Corrections, and Maurice Roberts, of the Employment Development Department.

There were workshops covering a host of professions and educational fields, including careers in the Black media.

Representatives from California State University Sacramento, Sacramento City College, UCD Medical School, and Consumnes River College, provided interested students with financial aid and admissions information.

Topics for small groups discussion covered, self - awareness, career awareness, educational planning and financial planning covering where scholarship and loan information can be obtained.

With Black youthful unemployment estimated at between 35 and 60 per cent, the Conference was helpful in aiding students prepare for the task of finding meaningful employment and qualifying for college admission.

A Day In The Life Of McAFB Employees

Rose Marie McDuff

What do a cowboy and a preacher have in common?

In the old western movies, they sometimes came into conflict one trying to convert the other to his or her way of life.

In the case of Rose Marie McDuff, preacher, and Ford Fearon, cowboy, they have two things very much in common. Both are in top-level executive positions at McClellan AFB, and both are very active in community life.

The similarities, for all practical purposes, end there.

On base, Rose is a race relations instructor in the Social Actions Office, a position she assumed in October 1973, after some years as a key punch operator and a computer operator.

A transferee from Norton AFB, when the logistics mission was phased out, Rose was the first civilian to take the three-month course at the Patrick AFB Defense Race Relations Institute, and was also recently appointed publicity officer for Social Actions.

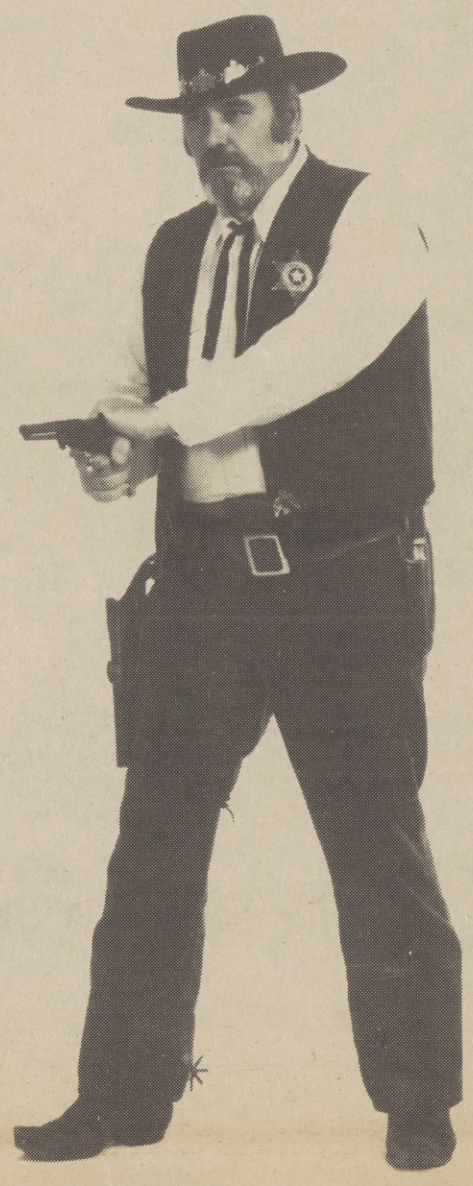
Those are her on-base activities. Away from her McClellan duties, Rose is an ordained minister with the Church of God in Christ denomination, and is both an evangelist and missionary -- and a very dedicated, enthusiastic one.

Her church is the Nash Temple on 8th Avenue, in the Oak Park section of Sacramento.

Rose is also active in the Black Women Organized for Political Action (BWOPA), and took part in a recent Prayer Breakfast sponsored by that organization, held in conjunction with the World Day of Prayer.

She also conducts a once-a-week prayer group, non-denominational in nature, which rotates among people's homes. A strong believer in the power of prayer, has had the power to heal.

She also has a great deal of pride in her daughter, Paula Marie, who is a senior in business administration at Los Angeles State University and for several years, represented Sacramento in the Miss Black America contest.



Ford Fearson

Ford Fearon is equally enthusiastic about both his on-base and off-base activities.

At McClellan, Ford is a contracting officer with the Directorate of Procurement, where he is assigned to the production and operations division. A McClellanite for the past 13 years, he previously served in the Air Force.

Once away from the base, Ford sheds his gray flannels (or the 1975 equivalent thereof) and dons the garb of Old Sacramento, cowboy variety.

A commuter to the hills around Pollock Pines and El Dorado County, he is a member of the Judge Roy Bean Club, and more recently, formed Gold Ridge Players. Ford and other business people in the area, "play" at cowboy in a very professional manner.

There are 14 members and they perform at various functions and parades, staging gunfights, hangings, and barroom brawls. At the recent Coloma Gold Rush Days, the group took five "firsts" and two sweepstake prizes for their realistic efforts.

The Gold Ridge Players will perform western melodrama, complete with all of the "law west of the Pecos" flavor at the Gold Ridge Playhouse.

Performing is nothing new to Ford. While in college he had parts in plays at the La Jolla Playhouse in San Diego County, both on stage and in the movies with such starts as Gregory Peck (in "Twelve O'Clock High,") Roddy McDowall and Dorothy McGuire.

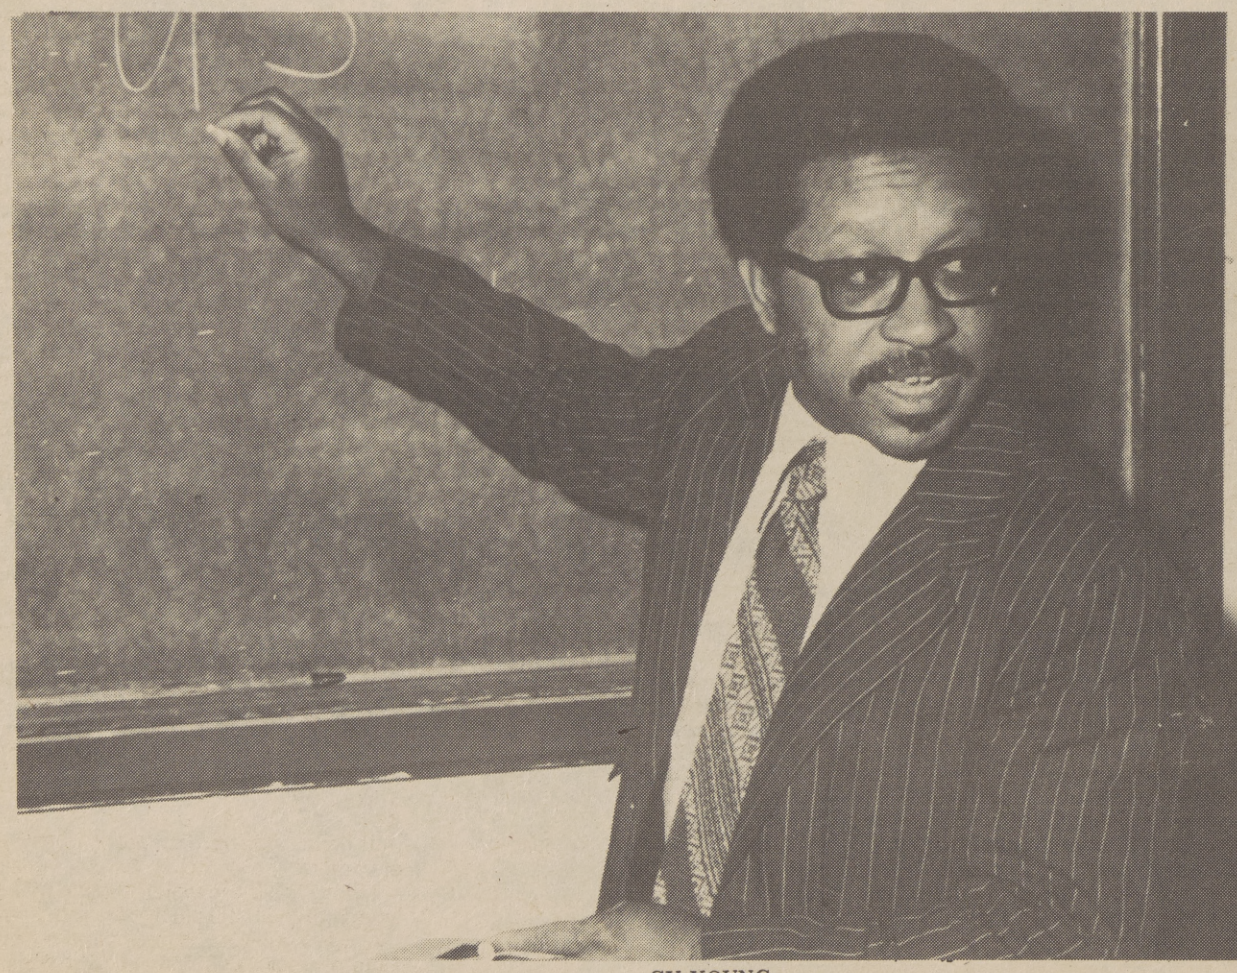
It seems to run in the family, since wife, Jo, daughter Jodie and son Ford, Jr., also take part in the western action. The Fearons also have a second son -- Wayne.

So in the cases of Rose and Ford, they may be miles apart in their avocations and off-base activities, but they both show the enthusiasm and dedication that is true of many McClellanites -- on the job and in the community.

Cy Young 'Sees Good Points In People'

Cy Young is Mather Air Force Base's defense community services (DCS) officer and one of the base's four race relations instructors. As DCS officer Young serves as a coordinator who puts civilian agencies that request a hand from Mather in touch with the proper department on base.

"Cy," as he is called by all who know him, first began working in this job last June. The job was formerly held by a military officer. Because Young is a civilian, it is expected that this should provide for more continuity and stability in the DCS position.



CY YOUNG

Young has been at Mather since 1956. Until he took the DCS job, he worked at maintenance control as a senior controller.

Cy's job as DCS officer isn't full time however; he spends most of his time preparing and teaching the race relations course. Interracial communication has been one of Young's important interests for 30 years, an interest he obtained from his father. This concern of his is a concrete manifestation of a basic and deep humanitarian attitude. He believes in the growth of everyone, not just those in a minority group.

A specific example is his idea on race relations. Young thinks problems arise from a lack of knowledge, or making judgments from incorrect facts, thus bringing about fear and discrimination. Destroying myths created by faulty or limited knowledge, and answering the questions needed to create a greater understanding, is what Young finds most satisfying in his position as a race relations instructor.

Naturally Cy doesn't create or expect miracles. He and the other instructors merely hope for a behavorial change, not an attitudinal one. They hope such a change in actions will eventually result also in a thought alteration.

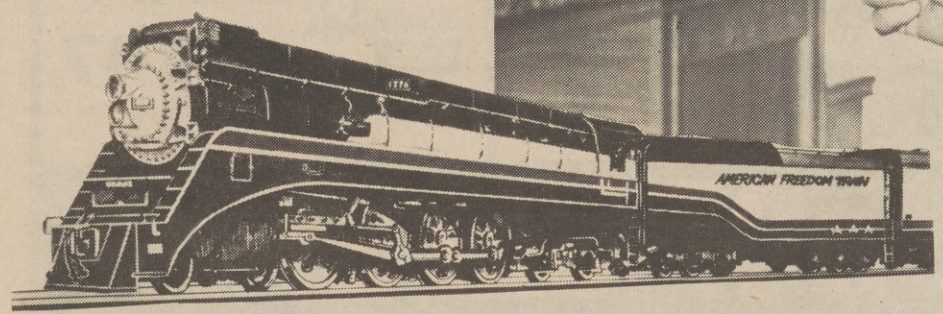
Of course, if the knowledge necessary to bring about this improvement in racial and human relations is to be understood, it must be effectively communicated. Thus an open mind is a definite asset for advancement in this area.

Another instrumental factor is positive thinking, says Young. "If we begin to think about our fellow man in a positive manner, his good points can be seen more readily. And when we're thinking good things about someone, it's hard to be prejudiced."

Bicentennial Exhibit On Display

Of the 700 items on view on the American Freedom Train Bicentennial exhibit, one that has special meaning is the life-sized replica of Dr. King's pulpit.

This is an exact model of the pulpit that still stands in Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta, Georgia. It was here that Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., delivered sermons that tested the very fiber of our system.



Jon A. Foust, President of the American Freedom Train Foundation, Inc., and C. Roy Jackson, consultant to the Foundation, inspect King exhibit. Twenty-one exhibit cars have been designed to portray America's heritage in a salute to the nation's Bicentennial. The American Freedom train will travel to 80 cities in 48 states.

The American Freedom Train is portraying Blacks in every facet of American history throughout its twelve-car exhibit.

The train is a steam - powered locomotive that was specially designed for the celebration of America's 200th birthday. Painted red, white and blue, it is on a 21-month journey through 80 cities in 48 states.

It will be in Sacramento November 18 of this year.

Each car displays significant periods in our nation's growth. When viewers pass through the cars on a moving walkway, they will experience 20 decades of heritage in an emotion-packed 20 minutes.

Car 10, for example, which is named "The Conflict and Resolution" car, is so real that history is brought to life with films of crowds marching and the sound of King's voice saying those immortal words: "I have a dream.. "

The American Freedom Train is a dream turned into reality that depicts our nation's progress from the period of the American Revolution to America's exploration in space.

The collection of historic artifacts and documents in the exhibit, includes George Washington's personal copy of the Constitution, President Abraham Lincoln's preliminary Emanicpation Proclamation, President Kennedy's rocking chair, rock samples from the moon and Dr. King's Bible and vestments.

President Ford has said, "This exhibit touches virtually every phase of the American experience . . . I look for the American Freedom Train to provide a unifying symbol of the heritage that made America's past a great one, and will make its future an even greater one."

She and her committee have prepared a two-volume report which was made available to the accreditation team early in February for careful persual before their visit here.

Are Truly

A Super

Springtime

Treat

In the spring of the year, everyone's fancy turns to meals on the patio, fish frys on the lakeshore, or picnics in the park. Although food costs continue to be high, that isn't sufficient reason for not enjoying these outings. Many products remain at moderate prices, all you have to do is know what to look for, use your imagination, and be ingenious enough to try new recipes, or repeat favorites that you've enjoyed before.

There are many fishery products that fit into the moderate to low cost category. Among these are the well-known and long-popular Maine sardines. These little fish with the big flavor are still being caught, cleaned, processed, packed into cans with a variety of sauces, cooked, labeled, and shipped to supermarkets everywhere.

Sardines pack a whale-sized protein punch, and are ready to enjoy at a moment's notice. It's so easy to have them shelf-ready, and they are a real bonanza when unexpected guests arrive and time is short.

It's time to plan a picnic in the park, or a trip to the zoo, or a walk along the lake. Maine Sardine Submarine Sandwiches are easy-do toteables that may be put together after you've arrive at your destination. Crispy fresh onion rings, cooler-fresh lettuce, tomato slices, and your favorite cheese slices are heaped onto submarine roll halves, spread with mayonnaise and mustard sauce, then topped with the savory sardines.

Make your outing a real family affair, or you might include a few neighborhood children to go along with the family for the day.

The cost of this hearty, satisfying sandwich is so moderate that you'll say the more the merrier!

MARINE SARDINE SUBMARINE SANDWICH

3 cans (3-3/4 or 4 oz. each) Maine sardines
1 onion, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
1-1/2 teaspoons prepared mustard
3 submarine rolls, 12 inches each
6 lettuce leaves
2 tomatoes, thinly sliced
Salt
6 slices cheese
Mustard sauce
1/3 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing

Drain sardines. Separate onion slices into rings. Combine butter and mustard. Cut rolls in half lengthwise. Spread bottom half with mustard butter. Cover with lettuce and tomato slices, and onion rings. Sprinkle with salt. Cover with chesse and sardines. Pour Mustard Sauce over sardines. Spread top half of rolls with mayonnaise. Cover sandwiches and secure with toothpicks. Makes 6 servings.

MUSTARD SAUCE

1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 teaspoons pickle juice
Dash liquid hot pepper sauce

Combine all ingredients. . . makes approximately 2/3 cup sauce.

Personality Quiz

Though kindness is a trait attributed to many, the individual who exercises it with consistent care will come to be considered one of a kind by his friends and relatives. Here's a quiz whose answers you might well put into effect when dealing with humankind:

1. After spending a day or weekend at a friend's home, you should (A) Telephone him immediately and express profuse thanks, (B) Write a short letter of gratitude, expressing the hope that he can visit you at your home in the near future, (C)Offer to take him out to lunch?

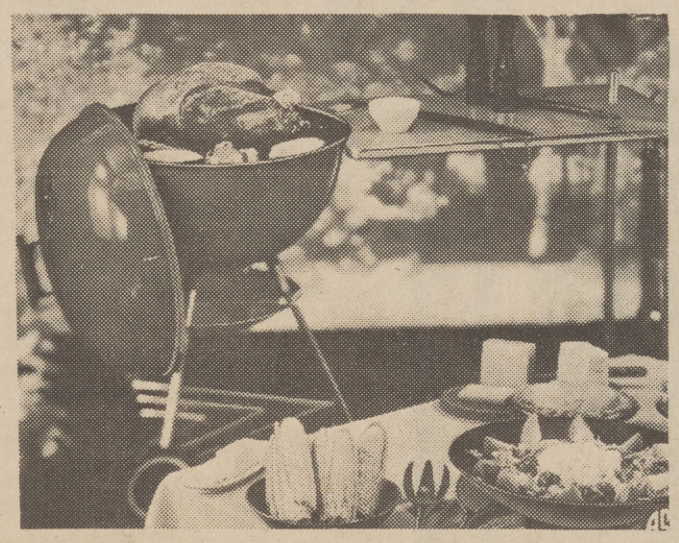
2. If your youngster complains that he or she has been graded unfairly on a test at school and you disagree, it's best to (A)Point out that the child, with a little more study, will probably do better next time, (B)Tell the boy or girl to quit complaining, or (C)Ask him or her if there are any complaints about other tests?

3. When a friend of yours dies and his family requests that you do not send flowers, but instead contribute to a charity, you should (A) Comply strictly with their suggestion, (B)Call a member of the family and tell her how much you would have liked to send flowers, or (C) Contribute to the charity and send flowers to the deceased's former residence or the funeral home?

4. After learning that it's the birthday of the boy or girl who delivers your newspaper, you should (A)Telephone the youngster's mother and ask what he'd like as a present, (B)Tell him happy birthday and, if you wish, give him a dollar or some change, saying that you hope he makes good use of it, or (C)Assure him that you intend to renew your subscription?

5. If a friend of yours has been fired, the kindest thing you can do is (A) Urge him to work harder on his next job, (B) Point out that, if he finds better work, his dismissal may be a blessing in disguise, or (C) Tell him about other friends of yours who have lost their jobs?

ANSWERS: 1. (B) A nice note and a reciprocal invitation would be appreciated the most. 2. (A) Compounding the child's disappointment would be of little avail. So tell him that he'll probably do better next time. 3. (C) Contribute to the charity and send flowers. Your double act of kindness will be appreciated at least twice as much. 4. (B) Wish him a happy birthday and, if he's done a good job, give hime some extra money. 5. (B) Point out that his present situation might lead to a better job.



For Easter: Barbecue Turkey

For something extra special, why not barbecue your holiday turkey? If you enjoy the flavor of outdoor cooking, you can barbecue year 'round, even in the chilliest weather.

The trick is to do the cooking in a covered kettle. The kettle protects food and hot coals (or gas) from frosty air and bakes food to a golden brown. Barbecuing your turkey is surprisingly easy, say home economists at Weber Stephens, the country's leading producer of barbecue kettles.

And, with frozen sweet corn generally available all year long, barbecue some ears to go with your festive holiday fare.

BARBECUE TURKEY
(UNSTUFFED)

(Stuffed turkeys take more time to cook. If stuffing is desired, bake it separately in a casserole along with turkey the last 45 minutes of roasting).

Oven ready-turkey
Salt
Pepper
Cooking oil

Clean turkey, sprinkle cavities generously with salt and pepper. Lock wings behind back or fasten next to breast and tie securely; tie legs and tail together securely or press legs under band of skin. Insert meat thermometer into thickest portion of thigh with point away from bone.

Center turkey on greased cooking grill or in roast holder on cooking grill directly over drip pan. Brush with oil. Cover kettle; cook to 185 degrees.

Add briquettes or adjust gas temperature control as needed to maintain temperature.

Turkey Bake

Tempt your family with a great tasting meat and vegetable casserole. Turkey - Zucchini Bake is nearly a meal in one. The flavors of turkey, noodles and zucchini are blended deliciously in the rich velvetized evaporated milk sauce. Serve with a crispy salad and dessert.

TURKEY-ZUCCHINI BAKE
(Makes 6 to 8 servings)

3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1-2/3 cups undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk
1/2 cup water
2 chicken bouillon cubes
1/4 teaspoon soy sauce
2 cups cooked wide noodles
2 cups cooked diced turkey or chicken
2 cups sliced zucchini
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons diced pimiento
1/2 cup cheese and garlic croutons

Melt butter in saucepan. Blend in flour and salt. Gradually stir in evaporated milk, water, bouillon cubes and soy sauce. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Layer noodles, turkey and zucchini in 1-1/2-2-quart baking dish, sprinkling 1 tablespoon Parmesan cheese over each layer. Pour sauce over all. Top with remaining cheese and pimiento. Place croutons around edge of casserole. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, 25 minutes.

National Food Day

"National Food Day," has been designated for Thursday, April 17 -- the day is a day for individuals and groups to begin to actively respond to the many food issues confronting us.

The focus will be on three major themes:

- the severity of the world food shortage
- rising prices at home
- the declining quality of the American diet and its effects on the public's health

Throughout the nation on April 7, church, student, anti-poverty, environmental and other public interest groups are urged to organize activities to help dramatize and work toward the solution of the food crisis.

One of the best times to get next to your mother was when she was doing your hair.

She'd talk to you then, and drink coffee. You'd listen. And sometimes she'd let you make her another cup, because you made it just right.

Now you drink coffee the same way she did then. Because, like your mother, you like that special cup of coffee. So you make sure you use the same coffee she used then. Instant Maxwell House.

After Skiing Smelt Burger

When "The smelt are running" is finally heard, thousands of men, women and children, will rush to their favorite smelting areas and begin slipping and sliding along the edge of the icy water while they haul in their catch. Commercial fishermen will also be hauling in boatloads of smelt for markets everywhere.

Smelt leave the large lakes and rivers in the early part of the year. When the ice begins to break, they swarm into tributaries on their springtime spawning runs. Their glistening bodies darken the water, making them easy prey for the avid smelters.

Smelt provide abundant protein and contain a pleasant oil which aids digestion. The average size of fresh-water smelt is from 7 to 8 inches, approximately 10 to 11 per pound. Smelt from some areas, however, are finger-sized, just big enough for 2 or 3 bites, and are delightful for eating out-of-hand when crispy. If you prefer smelting at the market, it's nice to know that they are available all year, either fresh or frozen, and pan-ready. An extra bonus is the moderate price.

"For goodness sake, eat smelt!" is the advice of smelters, and good advice it is. A tasty Smelt Ski-Burger will earn brownie points any time at all, and it's just right for after the skiing party when the successes in frustrations of the slope are still the talk of the hour. The smelt are baked, wrapped in slightly browned bacon, and perched atop Vienna bread halves which have been spread with a perky sauce and melted cheese slices.

Garnish with cucumber or tomato slices and serve in quarters or sixths depending on the size of the group or the size of the appetities. Smelt Ski-Burger is good any time of the year, and smelt are available at any time -- so happy eating!

SMELT SKI-BURGER

24 pan-dressed smelt, fresh or frozen (about 3 lbs.)
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1-1/2 cups seasoned dry bread crumbs
1/3 cup melted margarine or cooking oil
12 bacon slices, but in half crosswise
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
1/3 cup finely chopped onion
1/3 cup drained sweet pickle relish
1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 loaf (about 15-inch) Vienna bread, cut in half lengthwise
12 slices pasteurized process American cheese
12 thin cucumber or tomato slices cut in half

Thaw frozen fish. Clean, wash, and dry fish. Combine milk and salt. Dip fish in milk, drain and roll in seasoned crumbs. Arrange fish in single layer in very well-greased shallow baking pans, 15-1/2 x 10-1/2 x 1 inch. Drizzle melted margarine or cooking oil over fish. Bake in extremely hot oven, 500 for about 10 minutes or until fish flake easily when tested with a fork. While smelt are browing panfry bacon slices until lightly browned but not crisp; drain on paper toweling. Combine sour cream, onion, pickle and relish and mustars; mix.

Spread cut bread surfaces evenly with sour cream mixture and top each with 6 slices of cheese. Place sandwiches on baking sheet; return to extremely hot oven, 500 degrees just until cheese melts.

Remove from oven. Wrap a half slice of bacon around each smelt and arrange 12 smelt in a row on each half loaf of bread. Return to oven and reheat, about 1 minute. Garnish with half slices of cucumber or tomato placed between each smelt. To serve cut each half loaf in quarters or sixths. Serve piping hot.

Makes 8 to 12 servings.

Medicines Need Vitamins

While most people recognize that illness robs their bodies of vitamins and strength, far fewer know that medications prescribed for illnesses sometimes cause vitamin deficiencies too.

Penicillin, for example, lowers the level of vitamin A in the blood. Diuretics cause excessive losses of the B-complex vitamins and vitamin C. Certain sulfa drugs and some antibiotics alter the vitamin production process in the intestines and can create deficiencies of vitamin K.

Studies have shown that such medications also affect the flora production of biotin, a B vitamin recently recognized as essential for human nutrition by the National Academy of Sciences' Food and Nutrition Board.

Scientists at Hoffman-La Roche Inc., a leading producer of vitamins, report, however, that their review of the literature indicates that vitamin supplements can assist in maintaining proper vitamin balance within the body during periods of illness and recuperation.

ADAM'S RIBS and GRAPE SAUCE

Adam's Ribs

Pork spare ribs with a sweet pungent sauce are a favorite anytime of year, whether they are baked in the oven or roasted on the grill. Jams, jellies and preserves used as the foundation for the sauce give tasty results with minimum effort.

ADAM'S TANGY SPARERIBS
4 lbs. pork spare ribs
1-1/2 cups jam or jelly sauce (recipes below)

For easy handling during cooking, leave the ribs in one piece but have them partially cut through and cracked by the butcher for separation into single or double sections after cooking.

Brush ribs with selected jam or jelly sauce; place in a plastic bag and refrigerate several hours or overnight, turning occasionally. When ready to cook, brush sauce from ribs into saucepan and reserve.

Place ribs on a rack in a foil-lined roasting pan and bake in moderate oven, 325 degrees, for 1-1/2 to 2 hours or until fork-tender, turning once. Or, place ribs on a grill 6 to 7 inches from coals for 1 to 1-1/2 hours, turning frequently. During the last 30 minutes of cooking, brush ribs with reserved sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SWEET AND PUNGENT GRAPE SAUCE

In saucepan over low heat, cook 1 cup grape jelly, 1/4 cup vinegar, 1/4 cup tomato sauce, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 1/4 teaspoon allspice and a dash of garlic powder, stirring constantly, until jelly melts and sauce is well blended. Makes about 1-1/2 cups.

SPICY PEACH SAUCE

In saucepan over low heat, cook 1 cup peach jam or preserves, 1/4 cup vinegar, 1/4 cup water, 2 tablespoons corn syrup, 1/8 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves, stirring constantly, until jam melts and sauce is well blended. Makes about 1-1/2 cups.

For a snappy ginger sauce, try this one:

GINGER ORANGE SAUCE

In saucepan over low heat, cook 1 cup orange marmalade, 1/4 cup water, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 2 tablespoons soy sauce, 2 teaspoons prepared mustard, 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger and a dash of garlic powder, stirring constantly, until marmalade melts and sauce is well blended. Makes about 1-1/2 cups.

Breakfast: Stuffed Pears

Fresh Western winter pears are now in plentiful supply in the markets. The three varieties, Anjou, Bosc and Comice, all favorites for fresh eating in salads and out-of-hand, take on special appeal when baked into luscious desserts, pastries and meat accompaniments.

For a tasty and different breakfast treat, try Sausage Stuffed Pears. Juicy fresh pear halves are filled with a combination of ground pork and diced pear, then glazed with a spicy maple syrup mixture as they bake.

Regardless of color, fresh winter pears are ripe and ready to eat when they yield to gentle pressure. Should you buy firm pears, simply keep them at room temperature in a brown paper bag or fruit bowl, and they will quickly mature to juicy perfection.

SAUSAGE STUFFED PEARS
3 ripe winter pears
1 lb. ground pork sausage
1/3 cup maple-flavored syrup
1/3 cup water
1 tablespoon butter
1/8 teaspoon cloves

Halve and core pears. Scoop out pulp, leaving a 3/4-inch shell. Finely dice pulp and combine with ground sausage. Fill pears with sausage mixture and place in baking dish. Combine syrup, water, butter and cloves.

Bring to a boil. Pour over pears. Bake at 375 degrees, 45 minutes, basting occasionally with syrup from bottom of baking dish. Makes 6 servings.

Here's An Economical Family Dessert

TWO-LAYER BANANA PARFAIT

You can be budget-minded in the kitchen and at the check-out counter. First, plan a popular, yet inexpensive, family dessert. It doesn't need to be dull, just because it's inexpensive. In fact, you need to be cool, and let's face it -- crafty -- to save money. This attractive and elegant Two-Layer Banana Parfait can be the supreme ending to one of your meals. Use any of your favorite flavors of Jell - O gelatin with one large diced banana -- something you probably have on hand right now.

And when you do go shopping, another way to combat high food costs is to use coupons effectively. Here are some hints of help you save money.

You will find coupons in a variety of places; some are mailed directly to your home, some are found in newspapers or magazine advertisements, some coupons are found on or enclosed within food packages.

First of all, check each coupon you keep for an expiration date. Usually this date is several months from the time it is issued. But in the case of your local retailer's coupons, they may expire and become worthless within just a few days. Some coupons have no expiration dates, and are valid and valuable forever.

Remember to use only the coupons for products you want to buy and use. You can't save money, no matter how much value the coupon has, if you buy something you aren't going to use.

Keep all your coupons in one place, clipped together or in an envelope, and carry them with you whenever you go out -- you must have the coupons at the time you buy the product.

Look through your coupons every time you go shopping to see if you have any which can be redeemed on this shopping trip. Keep your coupons in a safe place. They are just like money to you when you redeem them on the products named on the face of the coupon.

Coupons are redeemed by the store cashier as part of the checkout transaction. As you are shopping, be sure to buy the exact product and brand shown on the coupon. Sometimes a coupon will specify a special size or require more than one purchase. Read these instructions on the coupon before you go to the checkout counter so you know you are following the terms of the coupon offer.

Have all the coupons you plan to redeem in your hand at the checkout counter. Show the cashier the coupons before she starts checking your purchases. This way she looks for the product you have coupons for. Most stores redeem hundreds of coupons every week. They're used to them.

Usually the cashier will ring up the marked price of the items you buy and then give you back the money value of the coupon. Sometimes, the cashier takes off the coupon value from the price of the item as it is rung up on the cash register. Either way, you save the coupon value from your food bill.

TWO-LAYER
BANANA PARFAIT

1 pkg. (3 oz.) fruit flavor gelatin, any flavor
1 cup boiling water
1 cup cold water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 large or 2 small bananas, diced

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add cool water and lemon juice. Measure 1 cup gelatin into a bowl; place in larger bowl of ice and water. Stir until slightly thickened, then whip with rotary beater or electric mixer until fluffy and thick and about double in volume. Spoon into sherbet or parfait glasses, filling each about 2/3 full. Chill until set, but not firm. Chill remaining gelatin until thickened, add bananas and spoon over whipped gelatin. Chill until set -- about 1 hour. Makes about 4 cups or 6 to 8 servings.

THE EXPLORING COOK

by MURIEL JANSEN

VIRGINIA AUTHOR COOKS WITH HEART

After I met Edna Lewis, a cookbook author who grew up in Virginia, I developed a warm feeling about Blacks from that state. Ruth Gaskins, the author of "A Good Heart and a Light Hand," (Annandale: The Turnpike Press, 1968) comes from Alexandria, Virginia. Her book is full of warmth, love and fascinating philosophy -- is a collection of traditional Negro recipes from friends in Alexandria and other parts of the South.

As one might expect, there are directions for curing ham, roasting possom; recipes for chitterlings and grits. Among the collection I found many recipes that intrigued me. Corned Fish Stew caught my attention because as a child I ate smoked fish in soup and in a variety of rice dishes. This was new to me in Black American cooking and I was pleased to have found a common bond in this part of our culture. The recipe I have selected for the column, is a cottage cheese pie with a lemony flavor. It was given to Mrs. Gaskins by Mrs. Annette Moreland, evidently a friend, who according to the author, contributed many of the nearly-forgotten recipes.

COTTAGE CHEESE PIE

2 tablespoons margarine, softened
1/2 cup light corn syrup
2 eggs
1 cup creamed cottage cheese
1 cup raisins, chopped
2 tablespoons milk
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 unbaked (8-inch pastry shell)

Stir together, margarine and corn syrup until smooth. Add eggs; continue beating until mixture is frothy. Stir in cottage cheese, raisins, milk, lemon juice and rind. Pour mixture into pastry shell. Bake in 425 degree oven 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 325 degrees, continue baking 35 minutes or until firm.

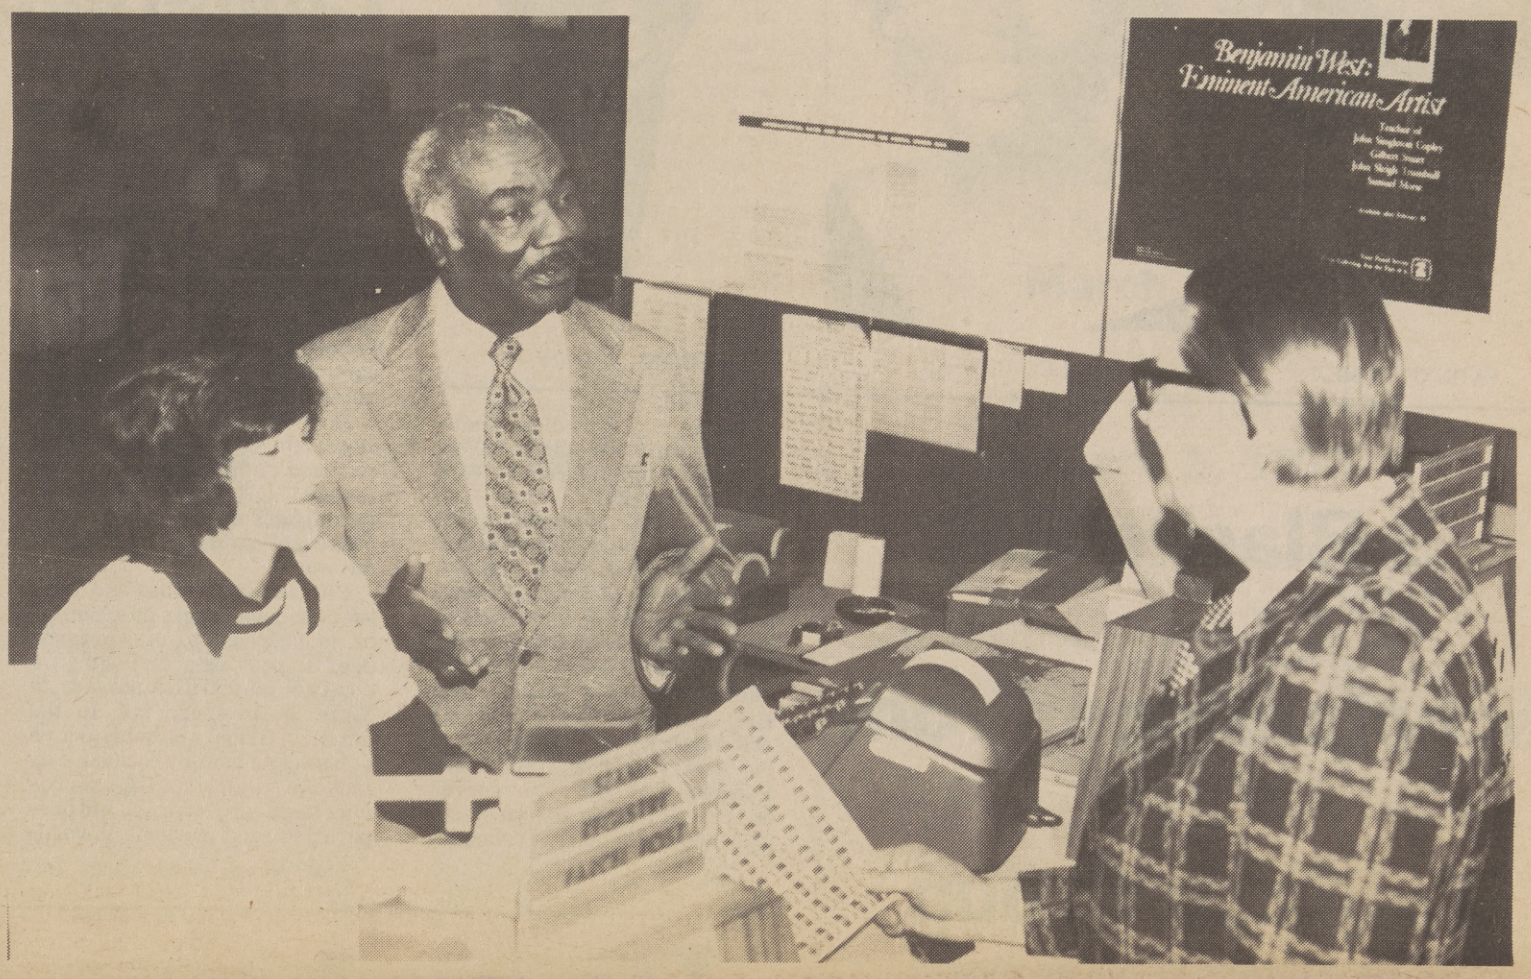
Craig Retires After 28 Years At US Post Office



Clarence Craig shown in his familiar role of helping his customers.

For several years, members of the Oak Park community may have been greeted by a familiar face while mailing letters at the Oak Park Branch of the United States Post Office on 35th Street.

At the end of the month, patrons of the Oak Park Station, will see that face no longer, for station superintendent Clarence Alfred Craig, Sr., will retire after 28 years of distinguished service with the United States Post Office.

A resident of Sacramento for 33 years, Craig began his career with the Postal Service in 1947, when he was hired to do various jobs ranging from substitute carrier to supervisor.

He was appointed Superintendent of the Oak Park Station in 1971.

Craig was born in Shreveport, Louisiana. Following graduation from high school, he attended Southern University in Baton Rouge.

During World War II, Craig served as mechanic for the United States Navy. After his term, he utilized his talents at McClellan Air Force Base as an aircraft mechanic prior to employment with the postal service.

Superintendent Craig was the first Chairman of the Sacramento Postal Equal Opportunity Committee.

He is a member of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, past President of the Mr. and Mrs. Club, past President of the Amigo's Club, Inc., and charter member of the Oak Park Congregational Church.

Craig and his wife, Annette, have four children, who currently reside in Sacramento and Oakland.

Condominiums Are For Persons Who Like Group Ownership

Many families would like to own their own homes but do not wish to assume the responsibilities of individual ownership.

For these persons, condominiums and cooperative housing, both forms of group ownership, are possible alternatives. There are, however, significant differences between them to be considered by a prospective buyer.

The basic difference between a cooperative and a condominium is the type of ownership.

The condominium owner actually owns the unit he occupies. The owner-member of a cooperative does not. He buys shares in a non-profit corporation that has title to the entire property. These shares entitle him to the use of a housing unit.

The condominium owner also shares common ownership of all areas that the occupants use jointly, such as the land, elevators, lobbies, stairwells and hallways. Each owner finances his unit individually, pays his own real estate taxes and makes payments on his own mortgage.

All closing costs are paid for by the condominium owner.

(In cooperatives, the corporation, pays these costs). But, as in cooperatives, the owner belongs to an association and pays a maintenance charge based on the size of his unit for upkeep of the common property. He can rent, alter or sell his unit without approval of the others.

Each shareholder has an occupancy agreement with the corporation that owns the entire property. A board of directors is elected to operate the corporation. Based on the size of his unit, a member pays a monthly charge to the corporation.

The corporation uses this money to maintain the premises, pay taxes and mortgage payments and build a reserve fund in case of emergencies.

A member usually has to obtain approval from the corporation to rent, sell or alter his apartment.

Business Caucus Rejects White House Agenda

WASHINGTON, D. C. - At the request of the National Business League, Black business leaders convened in emergency caucus on the eve of a White House "Think Tank" session, which is scheduled to discuss the future organizational structure of federal programs affecting minority business enterprises.

Approximately 100 representatives of minority business and economic development groups rejected in that meeting, the agenda proposed by the White House because of the narrowness of its scope in dealing only with the roles of the Small Business Administration and the Office of Minority Business Enterprise.

The group called for an immediate Presidential Executive Order, affirming an expanded commitement to be implemented within thirty days.

It was agreed that the expanded commitment should include recognition of the need for legislative support for a broad-based community economic development program, encompassing jobs, housing and business development. The group will mobilize their communities in support of those members of Congress who will enact the vital legislation and appropriations.

Speaking at an 11:30 a.m. press conference, Dr. Berkeley G. Bureell, President of the 75-year-old organization said: "No one in American can disagree with that need. We can only hope that government and this Administration will not ignore it."

Coleman Inherits Bias Policies At Dept. Of Transportation

WASHINGTON - William T. Coleman, the distinguished Black attorney named recently by President Ford to be Secretary of Transportation, will inherit an agency that needs substantial improvements in its anti-discrimination policies.

The Department of Transportation has never filed a court suit against Federal grant recipients that discriminate against Blacks in the use of Federal money for transportation projects. Under Title VI of the 1974 Civil Rights Act, a Federal agency through the Justice Department, can sue a grant recipient.

In only a few instances has the Transportation Department held up funds from a discriminating recipient.

Although it has the authority, it has only once stopped a contractor from receiving future Transportation Department contracts when investigations showed job discrimination in the past.

Coleman, 54, an honors graduate of Harvard Law School in 1946, now is a senior partner in a blue chip Philadelphia law firm. He is the second Black to hold a Cabinet post.

3 Blacks Get Scholarships From Tobacco Group

LOUISVILLE, Ky. - Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp., has announced that three students will attend college this fall on $1,000 company-sponsored National Achievement Scholarships.

The scholarships are awarded annually to outstanding Black high school seniors across the country. Of the 55,000 candidates who take the National Merit Scholarship Test each year, only 260 are selected as National Achievement Scholars.

This year's winners are Miss Cleo E. Powell, the daugher of Mr. and Mrs. Millas Powell of Emporia, Va.; Miss Yvonne Gomez, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gomez of Brooklyn, N.Y.; and Frank E. Emory, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Emory, Sr., of Wilson, N.C.

Selection is based on test scores, academic performance, community and school leadership as determined by the National Achievement Scholarship Corp. Brown & Williamson plays no part in naming the recipients.

Miss Powell, a senior at Brunswick High School, plans to attend Virginia Union University and major in psychology. She is president of the senior class, secretary of the National Honor Society, a cheerleader, member of Who's Who Among High School Students and the Society of Outstanding American High School Students.

A senior at Stuyvesant High School, Miss Gomez plans to major in pre-medicine at Cornell University. She, too, is a member of the National Honor Society and has received several certificates for excellence in scholarship.

A poet, pianist and gymnast, Miss Gomez is currently enrolled in a pre-medical training program for high school students administered by New York University.

Emory will graduate from Ralph Fikes High School in June and plans to attend Duke University where he will major in pre-law. A member of Who's Who Among High School Students, he has attended both the North Carolina Governor's School and East Carolina University honors seminar. As a member of the Rotary International Intern Program, Emory has served as a research chemist at North Carolina's Research Triangle.

Legislators Will Have Business Education Conference April 7

A one-day conference directed toward the education of local businessmen in federal procurement opportunities and foreign trade, will be held on Monday, April 7 from 8 a.m., to 3:30 p.m., in the Tuesday Clubhouse, 2722 L Street.

The conference sponsored by Congressman John E. Moss and Robert L. Leggett, and the Department of Commerce offer detailed information on the Federal Procurement process will represent more than 17 military and civilian agencies of the Federal Government, which is the highest dollar volume purchaser of goods and service in the world.

Congressman Moss and Leggett are sponsoring this seminar in response to an expressed need to provide prime and subcontract information not only to large businesses, but to the smaller firms who miss out on sales opportunities because they lack the basic knowledge of procurement procedures, bid preparation and current government needs for goods and services.

This educational program will provide a two-way exchange benefiting the local businessmen by providing them with in-depth buying information which the Department of Defense estimates would take a single businessman several months, and thousands of dollars, to obtain individually, and in turn should serve to provide the Federal Government with a broader range of businesses from which to meet their procurement needs.

In addition to the overall program presentations, individual counseling by representatives of the 17 federal agencies involved will be available.

Tickets for the one-day seminar, which are priced at $12.50 per person, and include luncheon and packaged information materials, can be obtained by contacting Jerry Wymore in the Office of Congressman John E. Moss, Room 8058, Federal Building, Sacramento (916) 449-3543.

Dr. Toote Explains Her Post With HUD

By Dr. GLORIA E. A. TOOTE
Assistant Secretary
HUD/Fair Housing/EO

My office has the responsibility of being the principle adviser to the Secretary of the Department and to all Assistant Secretaries or programmatic heads, relative to equal opportunity or the provision of equal opportunity in their various programs.

That is responsibility number one.

My post was established by Congress as a sub-cabinet post in the enactment of the law in 1968 that established the responsibility of the Department of Housing and Urban Development for enforcement of open housing throughout the nation. That law calls upon the Secretary of the Department to enforce "the national policy" of fair housing for all Americans and to administer all of the Department's programs in an affirmative manner, to assure open housing, freedom of opportunity, and equal employment opportunities in HUD funded programs.

When I came on board we had one sheet, legal size, that defined our compliance responsibilities. Now we have a legal size sheet, both sides fully printed, that define all of the obligations of my Office. The first one listed is Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 which calls for nondiscrimination in programs or activities receiving federal financial assistance.

This is the responsibility of

all federal departments and Agencies empowered to extend financial assistance to any program or activity by way of grant loan or contract authority. The provision requires that program money not be used in a discriminatory manner.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development, created by Congress in 1968 had its first Title VI proceedings concluded December 1, 1974.

It is the first instance that the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act as it relates to equal opportunity. Clearly bear in mind our responsibility is limited to equal opportunity requirements. Simply put, the new Federal Housing Law requires nondiscrimination in any program or activity subject to departmental funding.

We also have the responsibility of Title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968, which was amended just last year in 1974 to include the prohibition of discrimination based upon sex. Title VIII requires that there be non-discrimination in housing throughout this nation.

That there be no discrimination based upon race or color, religion, sex or natural origin, and gives my office the responsibility to accept complaints that are filed by citizens relative to housing discrimination, or to refer matters that relate to patterns and practices of discrimination to the Justice Department for intervention of suit.

We also have the responsibility of affirmative requirements of various Executive Orders such as 808 (D) of the Housing Bill of 1968 which simply says that the Secretary must administer all of his programs affirmatively, that cuts across the board of departmental responsibility from FHA to interstate land sales.

I think it rather necessary that I remind you that these are all of my staff responsibilities, so that you can be aware that if in your minds we are not fulfilling to the degree that you deem necessary, various acts for which we have a responsibility, it is because of the scope, the total scope of legal involvement and office operation.

We also have the responsibility for Executive Order 11246, as amended by Executive Order 11375 which mandates equal employment opportunity. Part 2 of which relates to nondiscrimination in employment by government contractors and sub-contractors. There is a unique distinction between the former and Title VI. Funds can only be cut off by the federal government, pursuant to Title VI, where the act of discrimination relates to a specific program funded by government. Discrimination in employment by local housing authorities or by a city alone may not be violative of Title VI.

We also have the responsibility for Executive Order 11063, Equal Opportunity in Housing, and Section 3 of the Housing and Development Act of 1968, as amended recently in 1974 which calls for the employment, the training and business opportunity of the poor wherever HUD money is spent.

This is an office that has responsibilities that relate with every program office in HUD, and also must relate with you, the public. Not simply the minority public, but the public that comprises our constituency. We have staff throughout the nation, not enough as most Americans see it, but quite adequate as Congress dictates and, therefore, with the limited staff that we have, we must prioritize our role, our obligations to you, and to the public, always bearing in mind that we are servants of the people.

Leaves and Oil Cause Flooding, Fines

John was just finishing his driveway repair job and had a little concrete left in the wheelbarrow. Looking around for a place to dump the gooey mess--where it wouldn't harden into an ugly rock -- John wheeled the barrow to the corner street drain and washed it down the grate.

John's next - door neighbor was trying to save a little money in these high-cost times and was changing the oil in his car. Looking around for a place to pour the dirty crankcase oil, he spied the corner street drain and poured it down.

Mary, three doors down, used the same sunny Sunday afternoon for a kitchen painting project. She cleaned the brushes in paint thinner, then took the dirty turpentine to the corner drain and poured it in.

All these people were indulging in a harmful, unthinking activity. They were taking your corner storm drain -- and your drainage system -- for granted and using it to dump insoluble materials.

Believe it or not, if caught and prosecuted to the full letter of the county's ordinance code, they could be fined a mixiumum of $300 or face a six-month jail sentence!

Getting rid of five quarts of dirty oil, a few grass clippings, or a pile of soggy leaves by shoving them out of sight down the storm drain seems an innocent thing to do.

"But when multiplied by some 257,000 households in Sacramento City and country," according to Chief of the County Water Resources Division J. P. Allessandri, "it poses a serious problem."

Not only does rubbish such as this create an ecological problem downstream in your drainage systems and local creeks and waterways, it also causes flooded and clogged drains during the rainy season.

Alessandri explains that county street and highway crews often are called out to flooded neighborhoods to un-plug a clogged sewer drain and keep traffic moving. Not only cars, bicycles and pedestrians are inconvenienced by flooded streets, but many homes are flooded as the gutters back up with muddy water and send it oozing into basement recreation rooms or sunken living rooms.

Homeowners' policies cover a myriad of flooded carpets and muddy drapery hems, raising everyone's insurance premiums. Street crews earn time-and-a-half charges for night and weekend work, which hurts the taxpayer. (Time-and-a-half charges for fiscal year '73-74 were $58,000 according to Alessandri).

Taxpayers also would be hurt should the County of Sacramento be charged under the State's Porter-Cologne Water Quality Act, which allows fines of up to $6,000 a day if excessive oil is found in drainage outfalls. One man's dirty crankcase oil may not be enough to do it, but several service stations or garages in one area who violate the code could certainly be responsible.

Tony's European & Asian Auto Repair

Hello, I am J. Shawn Ortiz, Staff Writer for America's Number One Black Newspaper, THE SACRAMENTO OBSERVER.

I want to introduce you to Tony Z. Yugovich. Tony is an Old World mechanic bred in the tradition of excellence. He is one of the few remaining traditionalists who demands perfection and takes personal pride in the work he performs.

I know from first hand experience. Recently my MGB burned up a set of main bearings. Expensive ? It could have cost a lot more. But Tony is reasonable and efficient.

Take my advice if you are the proud owner of an MGB, VW, Toyota, Mercedes Benz, Fiat, Datsun, Volvo, Audi or any one of the many fine European or Asian automobiles. Check out Tony's European & Asian Auto Repair.

Call or stop by for free estimates. Tony is open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m., Sunday through Friday, at 630 12th Street, corner of G Street. If you don't have time, call 441-0965, or see Ray, Doc, Mio, John and 'BIG' TONY.

ATTENTION CAR BUYERS

If you are in the market for a new or used car it is a certainty you've already heard about manufactor's rebates, dealer discounts and fantastic savings.

There is also a possibility that salesmen wearing bright smiles and politely avoiding the question of price have turned you off.

If you are tired of all the showroom razzle - dazzle and nobody seems to understand that all you really want is your money's worth and customer courtesy, then perhaps you will allow me to service your automotive needs.

I believe that high pressure selling tactics are dead. My personal feelings are that customers know what they can and cannot afford. I respect this.

I want to work to insure that you get your money's worth and I personally promise to try and understand your desires.

I invite you to come in and let's talk about that quality new or used car you are in the market for. I am sure we can work it out.

Southgate Garden Homes offers a "buy now" incentive plan with purchase of its three bedroom homes priced at $21,950. Special third phase close-out inducements include air conditioning, Hotpoint dishwasher, drapes, carpeting and no closing costs. Southgate Garden Homes 'Buy Now' Incentive Southgate Garden Homes has created a special anti - inflationary "buy now" incentive for purchase of new three bedroom homes for a limited time only, according to Robert H. Nielebeck, general manager of Singer Housing Company's Northern Division.

The new program is part of the close-out observance of Southgate's third phase.

The community, located in the expanding south area of Sacramento, offers three bedroom, one and one-half bath, garden plans, with air conditioning, Hotpoint dishwasher, drapes and carpeting, without closing costs for $21,950. Singer's incentive plan features a 3% down payment with monthly payments of only $152.45.

"It's worth noting," said Nielebeck, "that these new garden homes are in a great location - close to an 18-hole golf course, major shopping, in the Elk Grove School District, and all just minutes away from downtown Sacramento."

Other Southgate carefree plans begin at $19,950. All two, and three bedroom residences in the development have 7-3/4% financing available and come equipped with Hotpoint electric oven, range, hood, fan, and waste disposer. Community recreation facilities include a pool, cabana, and special play areas for children.

"Each garden home is located within buildings of two to six units each," Nielebeck observed, "to allow for more open space between buildings."

The development provides separation of walkways from driveways and approach roads for the safety of children playing within the project, while abundant lighting keeps common areas and park ways bright all night.

"One of the major benefits derived from the garden home lifestyle, is that you will never again have to paint an outside

Construction Now Underway In Heights Elderly Housing Complex

Construction is now under way on the new Del Paso Heights elderly housing complex, according to Ken Stroth, technical assistant for the Sacramento Housing and Redevelopment Agency.

Allen L. Bender and Company of West Sacramento, was awarded the contract on a bid of $988,179 and construction on the 40-unit low-income housing project, began the first week of March. Completion is projected for December of this year.

Prior to construction, undergrounding of overhead facilities was begun by SMUD and Pacific Telephone. SMUD assumed the cost of its portion of the undergrounding, which was done not only to avoid future construction complications, but also to improve the visual aesthetics. Likewise, Pacific Telephone undergrounded its facilties as a community service, waiving the

30,000 Who Do It Buy Larchmont Homes

Sacramentans have probably been wondering what those billboards meant all over town during January that said, "30,000 People Do It . . . MJB '75."

Well, now it can be told. The 30,000 people are "Coming Home To Larchmont Living." And the MJB is not a coffee, but M. J. Brock and Sons, Inc., Sacramento's largest builder of single family homes.

The billboards are part of Brock's 1975 advertising campaign which have had their counterpart in newspapers and on radio and television.

Now the billboards and other media advertising are telling Sacramentans, "30,000 People Do It. They Come Home to Larchmont Living."

The campaign was the brainchild of Steve Brock, assistant sales manager of the company.

He said it was conceived because, "for years, we have been telling people how many Larchmont homes we have built in Sacramento. And is an impressive figure."

But he thought there was a better way of telling the Larchmont story, something that was a little more fun.

So, he multiplied the number of homes sold by the average family of 3.5 and came up with a rough figure of 30,000 to "graphically illustrate the population living in Larchmont homes."

Imperial Opens 1st Sacramento Office

Imperial Savings and Loan Association, the nation's eighth largest savings and loan, opened its first Sacramento office at Bowling Green Shopping Center this week.

The financial insitution, which has 73 offices statewide is moving to the Shopping Center at Florin Road and Franklin Blvd., because it is a good area for a savings institution in a potential growth area of Sacramento, according to Eugene W. Traverso, vice-president and director of marketing.

The institution, with headquarters in San Francisco, merged its three subsidaries -- Imperial North, Imperial South and Imperial Central California last July.

Philip Petrie Gets Editor Post At Morrow

Philip W. Petrie has been named administrative editor for Macmillan's adult trade books in the company's General Books Division.

Petrie spent four years with William Morrow & Company, Inc., as senior editor of hardcover books and director of Morrow paperback editions. Among the titles he acquired at Morrow were: "The Hungered One," by Ed Bullins, one of the New York Times' One Hundred Distinguished Books of 1971; "I Am A Black Woman," by Marie Evans, selected by the Black Academy of Arts and Letters as the best volume of poetry for 1970, and "Runner Mack," a novel by Barry Beckham. Other contemporary authors that Petrie worked with a Morrow are poet Nikki Giovanni, playwrights Edgar White and LeRoi Jones, novelist Arnold Kemp and essayist Rex Nettleford.

Most recently Petrie has been executive editor of the Howard University Press, which he joined at its formation.

Petrie is 37 years old, a graduate of Tennessee State University, married and the father of three boys. He joins Macmillan March 31.

Other changes in Macmillan's General Books Division, include the promotion of Peter Jovanovich from manager of special projects to managing editor for adult trade books. He is a 1972 graduate of Princeton University.

Law Allows Attachment Of Federal Checks For Child Support

WASHINGTON, D. C. - A law which became effective on January 1, of this year, now permits the attachment of all Federal paychecks, including those of military personnel, retirees and Social Security recipients to pay court-ordered child support and alimony, according to Congressman Robert L. Leggett.

A provision of the new Social Services Amendments now permits this practice if a duly authorized state court has ordered child support or alimony payments be made. Military paychecks had previously been exempted from such procedures, an exemption which had caused numerous complaints of failure to satisfy court-ordered obligations.

Regulations to implement the new law are still being prepared; however, Congressman Leggett, advised that anyone who believes that they can benefit from the new law should forward all relevant information and documents, including a copy of the court order, to the General Counsel of the Federal agency involved.

"Far too much time has been spent chasing down a very few individuals who fail to satisfy court - ordered support judgments against them, only to find that nothing can be done," Leggett stated.

"The vast majority of individuals who have enjoyed this exemption have discharged their obligations honorably; as usual, a few bad apples have given these people a bad name. I hope that this new law will serve to protect both the reputations of honest citizens and the rights of those entitled to support."

Tunney Backs Low Income Home Aid

Senator John V. Tunney (D-Calif.), strongly endorsed the recent freeing of some $264 million in funds to be used to provide homeownership assistance for low and moderate-income families.

Tunney said, "I applaud the Senate's action making funds available for the purchase of homes to families hardest hit by the ravages of inflation and recession. The $264 million freed today by the passage of Senate Resolution 61, will give thousands of families the opportunity to own their own homes, an opportunity denied to them in the past by Administration freezes.

The funds are to be used to provide interest subsidies for low and moderate income families under the Section 235 homeownership assistance program.

Senator Tunney remarked that the release of the funds, deferred by the Department of Housing and Urban Development since the imposition of the housing moratorium in January of 1973, signaled a Congressional reaffirmation of the principle that "every American family has the right to decent housing, whether they are rich or poor."

Tunney expressed the hope that the Department of Housing and Urban Development would move quickly and make the funds available for mortgage interest subsidies, "in order to get families into decent homes, and to get desperately needed money into our construction industry."

Glenbrook Garden Homes 'Another Big Advantage'

Strong economic benefits and a maintenance-free life-style are the key factors attracting buyers to Glenbrook Garden Homes in Sacramento, reports Robert H. Nielebeck, general manager of Singer Housing Company's Northern Division, builders of the leisure-oriented residential community.

Two, three and four bedroom Garden Homes, with up to two and one-half baths, are budget priced from $21,950 to $26,950. Single and two story plans can be purchased with low down payments and reasonable monthly payments in conjunction with excellent 7-3/4% financing.

"More and more people are becoming dissatisfied with the expensive and time-consuming upkeep burdens associated with traditional homes," observed Nielebeck, "and renting offers little genuine privacy and no financial relief from high income taxes."

He then pointed out that a recent survey of new residents at Glenbrook showed they felt the community combined the best elements of single family and apartment living.

Said Nielebeck: "Garden Home owners at Glenbrook can realize substantial tax savings, perhaps several hundred dollars a year, through the deduction of mortgage interest and property taxes from their gross income.

"Another big advantage," he noted, "is the presence of a professional maintenance crew selected by the Glenbrook Homeowners Association to regularly handle all of the exterior upkeep chores that go with ownership of a single family detached home. This in itself frees residents to spend leisurely evenings pursuing hobbies at home or weekends traveling to various recreational and entertainment attractions."

Stylish design at Glenbrook begins with the formal living rooms, fully carpeted to add to the enjoyment of special occasions as well as everyday living.

All-electric kitchens provide homemakers with the latest in time-saving convenience, featuring a well-planned layout for cabinets and all of today's important appliances and built-ins. Separate dining rooms have been thoughtfully located adjacent to the kitchens.

Parents privacy has been given top priority at Glenbrook with master bedroom suites created to serve as retreats from the hectic workaday world outside.

Every residence also has an intoor laundry service area and a fenced patio complete with bonus storage locker.

Glenbrook Garden Homes are situated in one of Sacramento's most desirable locales. For those who like outdoor recreation, local parks, and golf courses are close at hand and the American River is within walking distance.

wall, mow a lawn, rake leaves, prune a tree, or repair a roof or sidewalk," Nielebeck stated.

"These burdensome chores, along with strict architectural control, are all among services provided by the Southgate Garden Homes Association."

Nielebeck cited equity build-up and tax benefits of property ownership as a hedge against inflation. "You buy and own your Garden Home and the land upon which it's built the same as you buy any single family dwelling," he explained.

Southgate offers convenient location to neighborhood shopping, Florin Regional Shopping center, and a convenient commute to downtown Sacramento, the Sacramento Army Depot and south area employment centers.

Southgate is within the highly regarded Elk Grove School District.

In this time when inflationary prices seem to be the rule, Southgate Garden Homes is holding the line for the benefit of its buyers.

Southgate Garden Home Plan C, offers three bedrooms, one and one-half baths in a two-story design with 1,180 square feet of living area. The lower floor includes a large living and dining room, half-bath, indoor washer and dryer space, U-shaped kitchen, and spacious private fenced patio section. A large storage area is included in the uniquely designed "butterfly" carport area. A wrought iron railing leads to the three bedrooms and full bath on the second floor.

Willis J. Martin, left, receives an Equal Employment Opportunity Award from Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan. Martin, who is with the U.S. Labor Department's Manpower Administration in Washington, D. C., was recognized for "efforts expended in behalf of all people of all races to make equal employment opportunity a reality -- not just a goal." Ben Burdetsky, deputy assistant secretary of labor for manpower, is at right.

charge to SHRA, due to the nature of the construction project.

The 1.97-acre project site, is bounded by Cypress Street, Roanoke Avenue and Rio Linda Boulevard, and sits directly south of the new city library.

Included in the complex will be a community building with kitchen, laundry and recreation facilities; a one-story, eight-unit building; and two two-story apartments, each containing 16 units.

To accommodate the residents, covered walkways will join the buildings on both the first and second floors, with an elevator tower providing direct access to the second-floor walkway.

Each apartment, designed for double occupancy with separate bedroom, kitchen and living room, is equipped with emergency alarm features. Aid is summoned when a resident activates an alarm switch within the apartment unit. Fire protection equipment includes an electrically supervised single station heat/smoke detector. In addition, the manual fire alarm system will report directly to the fire station.

Additional conveniences will include heavy-duty grab-bars along hallways and four apartments especially designed for occupancy by handicapped persons.

These four units feature lower kitchen cabinets, an open area beneath the sink and range for those confined to a wheelchair and heavy-duty grab-bars strategically located in bathroom and shower.

While such amenities serve the physical needs of the residents, other features are designed to meet their emotional and aesthetic needs.

Vehicle Registration Slows

A total of 16,169,348 motor vehicles and trailers were registered in California at the end of 1974, an increase of 428,664 over 1973.

The 2.78 per cent increase over the previous year's registration figures is the lowest annual percentage increase in over ten years, according to State Motor Vehicles Director Herman Sillas. The 4.54 per cent increase in 1973 slightly exceeded the annual average, he said.

By category, the 1974 year-end totals were: Autos, 11,061,-869; Trucks, 2,454,856; Motorcycles, 665,273; Trailers, 1,-751,824; and Exempt From Fees, 235,426.

The 1974 registration totals include 1,261,630 new vehicles and 493,894 out-of-state vehicles registered in California for the first time. Partially offsetting the increase, however, were more than a million vehicles which were either junked or left in California.
